Primary set for Tuesday

Here's a look at what's on the state primary ballot

By Don Staruk

The state primary election is this Tuesday, Sept. 15, and Randy Hanson, town clerk, wants to be sure residents know there will be two polling locations.

"Precincts 1, 3 and 8 will be at the Senior Center," Ms. Hanson said. "The rest of them are up at the High School, in Dunn Gymnasium."

The town sent orange postcards to residents in precincts 1, 3 and 8, saying they'll vote at the Senior Center.

Polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Shuttle buses will run between the Senior Center and the High School all day long, beginning at 8:05 a.m. at the Senior Center and ending back there at 6:27 p.m.

The buses will go down

Polls are open 7 to 8 Tuesday and are at two sites: Andover High School and at the Senior Center.

School starts today; What's new in the schools?

Public school in Andover starts today for everyone except those in grades 10-12 at Andover High School. They start school tomorrow. Here's a look at what's happening in the schools:

Administration

Andover welcomes six new administrators this school year. Eileen Woods is the new assistant superintendent for curriculum. She was the principal at Sanborn Elementary School for the past eight years.

Jade Reitman has taken over as principal of Sanborn. She had been principal at South School for the past seven years.

Timothy Wilson has taken over for Ms. Reitman at South School. He had been a principal in Central Massachusetts for two years.

Charlie Friel, West Elementary's assis-

Teachers and administrators talk about:

Who is the ideal student?

By Lisa Boudreau

Teachers want students to bring more than a notebook and pencil with them when they arrive at school this week. Educators expect students to arrive with an abundance of enthusiasm and a desire to work, said Mark McQuillan, superintendent of Andover's public schools.

The Townsman talked with several teachers and administrators from local public and private schools who described the "ideal students" with whom they hope to work this academic year.

Preschool and kindergarten

"The ones we love to see are the kindergartners who come ready to learn," said

A run for the Senate

Six seek Pat McGovern's state Senate seat

Six candidates are running for the state Senate seat Pat McGovern, D-Lawrence, has held for 12 years. Reporter Don Staruk compiled the following profiles.

Brion M. Cangiamila
Party: Republican
Age: 30
Address: Billerica
Education: Associates degree in business administration, Fisher Junior College
College: School of Business Management, Bentley College
Job: State rep., 24th Middlesex (Billerica)
Personal: Single

Rep. Brion Cangiamila, who was elected to the Statehouse in 1990 in the 24th Middlesex District, wants to take his service to another level in the Senate because he enjoys the work.

tant principal for the past four years, was chosen this summer to replace Jack Coyle, the school's principal who retired in June.

Denise Littlefield, an administrator from Methuen, was chosen to be West Elementary's assistant principal.

Floyd McManus, who has been acting principal at Doherty Middle School for the past year, was chosen to be the school's permanent principal.

Shawsheen K-2

Second-grade students and teachers will join the Shawsheen community this year. The school has some familiar faces in different places, as well as some new teachers, said Terry Murphy, coordinator of the Shawsheen program.

Nancy Ghirardini, who taught first grade last year, will teach second grade this year. She will be joined by Susan Infantine and Carol Buchanan, who are new second-grade teachers.

Laura Tenero, who taught kindergarten last year, will teach first grade this year and Anne Hodge will be the art teacher.

This year's school theme is endangered species. Each classroom will adopt an animal as its mascot. Teachers will integrate the theme into the curriculum whenever possible.

"We have a very talented and clever music teacher who has written an original music score about animals. She and the PE teacher have come up with a movements for a dance to the music," she said.

The school's second-graders will work with a pilot social studies program that will study families and how they have changed, Ms. Murphy said.

Another initiative at Shawsheen will be to utilize the new equipment in the school's computer lab. Ms. Murphy said one of the school's goals is to have all second-graders adept at keyboarding by the time they leave school next June.

Bancroft

Students at Bancroft Elementary School will notice new playground equipment designed for handicapped children, said Principal Debra Dunn. The equipment was bought with funds raised by the Parent Teacher Association.

"They hope to dedicate the playground to Sandra Goldberg, a first-grade teacher, who died last year," said Ms. Dunn.

In March the PTA will sponsor a poet in residence. Through the school year the school will sponsor teacher training in process writing and ways to integrate literature into all areas of the curriculum.

Sanborn

Jade Reitman begins her first year as principal at Sanborn this week. She won't be the only new face in the building. Ms. Reitman, who was the principal at South Elementary for seven years, is joined at Sanborn by second-grade teacher Marjorie Recinos, who was a teaching assistant in Andover; third-grade teacher Jennifer Marsella; kindergarten teacher Ann Saurman; special-needs teacher Anne Saurman; fifth-grade teacher Ernest Perry; and two teaching assistants, one in the media center and one in kindergarten.

Sanborn's theme is student as worker, said Ms. Reitman. Teachers will participate in a variety of training workshops, including Talents Unlimited.

"Talents Unlimited is a thinking-skill program," said Ms. Reitman

"Its philosophy is that people have multiple talents, not just academic strengths. Teachers are trained to include different talents in their classroom instruction," she said.

Teachers will also work on alternative methods of assessing student progress. Ms. Reitman said rather than relying on test scores, a student's portfolio may include drawings, a recording of an oral reading or a video tape of a performance.

Because there are more students this year, the school's media center has been divided in half to make more classroom space. The school's fiction collection will be stored on carts and circulate to different classrooms during the year. The school's reference and nonfiction materials will remain in the scaled-down media center.

West Elementary

West Elementary also has a new principal and assistant principal. Charlie Friel, assistant principal for the past few years, is principal, replacing Jack Coyle, who retired last June. Denise Littlefield is the assistant principal.

Also new at West Elementary is first-grade teacher Patricia Gleason. Ms. Gleason formerly taught in the Methuen school system and is back in education after a few years hiatus. Cheryl Scammel, a 1984 graduate of Andover High School, is teaching second grade.

Third- through fifth-graders will work on a new math program along with the town's other elementary students The new program stresses problem solving.

The school will also use another systemwide program for elementary students – in social studies.

Building changes

West Elementary has undergone some renovations during the summer, Mr. Friel said. Besides painting and other general maintenance, half the school has new ceilings and lightl. A new walk was installed between the front of the school and the playground.

News In Brief

Trombly drops one a.m. trip

By Tina Mosca

Cora Quisumbing-King, of 8 Fairfax Drive, called the Townsman Tuesday morning from her job in Boston to say that her commute on the Trombly Commuter Lines bus was a problem.

The number of morning buses had been cut, she said, and because so many people were crowding onto the buses, her 7:05 bus arrived at 7:20 at Faith Lutheran Church on South Main Street, where she boards the bus.

Fifteen commuters had to stand for the ride to Boston. And two weren't able to get on the bus because it was so crowded, reported Ms. Quisumbing-King, who works at Liberty Mutual near the Boston Public Garden.

Trombly issued a new bus schedule Sept. 8. According to the revised schedule, one of the buses that had formerly stopped at Andover center between the hours of 6 and 8 a.m., has been cut. There used to be five, now there are four, arriving at 6:15, 7, 7:30 and 8 a.m.

When asked why cuts have been made, a Trombly spokesperson said summer surveys reviewing data accumulated over the past two years indicated the demand for busing in and out of Boston had decreased. He asks commuters with legitimate cause for concern to call and issue their concerns. Callers' names will be listed and passed on to the board responsible for the recent cuts.

Anyone who has been affected by the rescheduling or who is curious should call Trombly Commuter Lines at 937-3626.

(Tina Mosca is an intern at the Townsman.)

Tsongas endorses Atkins

Former senator and recent presidential candidate Paul Tsongas recently endorsed Rep. Chester Atkins, D-Concord, for re-election to Congress in the Fifth District. Mr. Tsongas spoke at events in Marlboro, Lowell, and Lawrence on Aug. 26 in which he said he was endorsing Rep. Atkins because of his deficit reduction plan, his stand on social issues and his ability to deliver for the district through his seat on the House Appropriations Committee.

CLT PAC backs Cangiamila

Citizens for Limited Taxation's 2 1/2 Political Action Committee has endorsed state Rep. Brion M. Cangiamila, R-Billerica, for the Massachusetts state Senate. (See page 1 for his profile.)

"Rep. Cangiamila supports tax limitation and control of government spending. His pro-taxpayer, pro-job growth agenda is vitally needed in the Massachusetis Senate as our commonwealth fights its way out of the recession," said Francis J. Faulkner, executive director of CLT's 2 1/2 PAC.

Earth Day board to meet Sept. 22

The Earth Day Committee will hold a brainstorming meeting Tuesday, Sept. 22, from 7:30 to 9 p.m. on the second floor of the Town office building, Bartlet Street.

Andover Earth Day will be celebrated Sunday, April 18, following a week dedicated to cleaning the town of trash and litter.

Those who are interested in attending the meeting are asked to bring ideas for publicity, recruitment of volunteers, logistics, methods for involving local businesses and for the wrap-up party.

For further information, call Peg Campbell at the Department of Community Services.

Time to meet football coaches

The Andover High School Football Parents Organization will sponsor its annual Meet The Coaches Night Thursday, Sept. 17, at 7:30 at Old Town Hall on Main Street.

This is an opportunity for parents to hear Coach Dick Collins speak about the football program at AHS. Parents will be able to meet with the football coaches and to ask questions.

Directors of the parents organization will be present with information about their group.

A short video of the 1991 football season, made by the AFPO, will be shown.

Coffee and dessert will be served. Parents of all AHS football players, including freshmen, are invited to attend this informal program.

VNA seeks volunteers

HomeCare Inc. Visiting Nurse Association of 1 Union St. is looking for volunteers for the fall community flu clinic program that it sponsors.

Volunteers from communities within the Merrimack Valley are needed for clinics in several locations, starting in October.

People interested in meeting the public and assisting with administrative functions are asked to call HomeCare at 470-1615.

Town to test cholesterol

The Andover Board of Health will hold a cholesterol screening clinic Wednesday, Sept. 16, from 9 a.m. until noon. An appointment is necessary.

The simple fingerstick test for total cholesterol costs $5 and does not require fasting. The program includes dietary counseling by the public health nurse and referral to your private physician for follow-up care as needed.

For further information or an appointment, call the health department at 470-3800, Ext. 255.

Habitat plans walk, thrift sale

Greater Lawrence Habitat for Humanity will hold its sixth annual "Hike for a House" 10k walk Sunday, Sept. 20, at 2 p.m.

Walkers will meet at Pemberton Park in Lawrence.

The goal is to have 200 walkers raise $20,000. Information on G.L.H.F.H. and a pledge sheet for the walk is included in this week's Townsman. For further information, call 470-0806 or 470-0771.

Habitat for Humanity is asking residents to save household goods, small and large appliances in working condition, furniture, toys and clean, wearable clothing for its Saturday, Oct. 17, thrift sale, which will be held from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. at Grace Church in Lawrence. Proceeds will benefit the Greater Lawrence chapter of Habitat for Humanity.

For more information, call Karen Forrest at 475-9496.

DCS registration is next week

The Department of Community Services registration for fall classes will be held Wednesday, Sept. 16, at the Doherty Middle School Auditorium from 7 to 8 p.m.

Booklets have been mailed to all Andover residents and are available at the DCS office on Bartlet Street and Memorial Hall Library.

Cookbook

The Townsman will publish a special section, Holiday Cookbook, Nov. 12, and would like to ask residents to contribute recipes.

Please drop off your favorite recipe(s) with a brief explanation of where it came from and any other interesting information about it.

Recipes can be dropped off or sent to Cookbook, Andover Townsman, 33 Chestnut St., Andover 01810, or fax it to 508-470-2819.

West Elementary will also get two new boilers. They should be installed by the end of the month, he said.

"We are asking that student bring a sweater or light coat to school at least for the first few weeks," Mr. Friel said.

The school's Parent Teacher Association has raised more than $90,000 during the past four years to re-equip the playground and the last phase was complete this summer.

Some of the money the PTA raised has been used to purchase one of the school's new CD Rom computer units, Mr. Friel said. The other unit was paid for with the school's computer funds. Installed in the new computers will be a 15-volume encyclopedia.

South Elementary

New Principal Tim Wilson is one of five new faces at South. New teachers are Traci Raeburn, first grade; Betty Ann Coyle, fourth; and Elizabeth Kennedy in fifth. Gail Haddock is the school's new secretary.

Mr. Wilson plans to build on the school's current programs, including raising self esteem, building a sense of community and encouraging staff and students to think critically and self-reflectively.

"I feel very welcomed here," said Mr. Wilson. "People have been very friendly."

Middle schools

Both middle schools will reinstitute a seventh-grade foreign language program. It was dropped last year, due to budget cuts. Sixth-graders at both schools will have an introductory foreign language program.

Both West and Doherty middle schools are on a five-day, eight-period per-day schedule this year. The goal of the rescheduling is to reduce the number of study periods and increase scheduling flexibility. The middle schools will also introduce an integrated arts curriculum. Students will rotate during the school year and take health, music, industrial arts, home economic and visual arts.

The middle school math curriculum, which was studied during the last two years, will also see some changes. The school department decided to adopt a Heath publishing program that concentrates on higher-level thinking skills and problem solving in real-life situations for the sixth grade. In the seventh-grade, students will take pre-algebra and eighth-graders, algebra I. Students in both grades ready to take accelerated classes will have that opportunity, said West Middle Principal Sam Campbell.

Both schools will also have a U.S. history course for eighth-graders.

Doherty Middle School

Doherty Middle School will welcome about 60 students from the West Middle district this September. There will also be new staff members, some transferring from other schools in town and others from schools outside Andover, said Floyd McManus, who will begin his first year as Doherty's official principal. Last year he was acting principal.

Elaine Elliot and Elizabeth Torosian are the two new faces in the school's foreign language program. They will be joined by Kathy Blain, who will return to the school's French department parttime after working at Doherty Middle and the former East Junior High for many years.

Dick Bourdelais, coordinator of the school's physical education programs, will instruct gym classes at Doherty two day each week.

Elizabeth Macumber, an adjustment counselor, transferred from West Middle School. Beth Morrissey, a sixth-grade math teacher, transferred to DMS this year from South, and Betty Ann Iannuccilli will teach both social studies and science.

Doherty will start an enrichment program aimed at students' individual interests. Teachers will volunteer their expertise in 32 areas ranging from intramural sports and astronomy to chess, dance and writing.

West Middle School

One of the first things people notice when they arrive at West Middle is the change in the building. "The school is so much cleaner and brighter. It is a much more inviting place to be," Mr. Campbell said.

Josephine Goldin, who taught at DMS, will teach eighth-grade English and math at West Middle.

Mr. Campbell has not yet hired teachers to fill an opening in the foreign language department and one in the social studies department in the eighth grade. He has reorganized the teaching teams in all three grades.

Andover High

The high school has nine new teachers. Many of them transferred from other schools in the system.

Tom Meyers, a social studies teacher from DMS, is teaching ninth grade at AHS, as well as an elective sociology class for 11th- and

Marshalls gets OK for store

By Don Staruk

The Grocery Bag convenience store on Haverhill Street has dropped its opposition to Marshalls Inc. offering limited on-site retail services to its employees.

Marshalls had applied to the Zoning Board of Appeals for a variance to allow a convenience store, a travel agency and a dry cleaning operation in Brickstone Square.

But a compromise was worked out prior to a public hearing on the petition scheduled for last Thursday, Sept. 3, according to ZBA member Alan Shulman.

"It was remanded back to the building inspector," Mr. Shulman said.

George Howie, Grocery Bag owner, his sister, Norma Ballway, and several of their neighborhood customers opposed the variance for fear the competition might drive the Grocery Bag out of business. But during talks last week, Marshalls officials said they did not intend to have a convenience store in their offices, but merely a few convenient services for its employees.

In a letter explaining their intentions, Marshalls said they will not have sandwiches, soft drinks, cigarettes, candy or lottery tickets.

They will have a limited sampling of gift chocolates, home video rentals, flowers and plants, sundries for business trips such as deodorant, toothpaste and hair spary, and greeting cards, magazines and photo developing.

Mr. Shulman said that because of the limited nature of the services that Marshalls is offering, and the fact that the services are only for employees, they are considered an accessory use and do not require a variance. The Grocery Bag owners and neighbors agreed.

"When it came down to it, what they were going to do was fine with us," Ms. Ballway said last week.

Video helps solve store break

By Don Staruk

An attempted break into the Radio Shack in Shawsheen Plaza two weeks ago was solved this week with some good police work, a video camera and a little bit of luck.

At about 3 a.m Friday, Aug. 21, a man attempted to break into Radio Shack by smashing a cart into the window. An outside window shattered but the inside window held and the intruder left. Since access wasn't gained, the alarm company did not notify police. A few minutes later, Officer James Moses saw a white Jeep with New Hampshire plates in Shawsheen Square that he thought might have been reported stolen earlier in New Hampshire. He was wrong; it was a different Jeep, this one was not reported stolen, and he did not pull it over.

The broken window at Radio Shack was spotted by Officer Colin Radford at 3:50 a.m.

Officer Radford called the owner of the store who came down to the plaza and played a video camera, which had been on in the store. The video showed a man in a white Jeep drive up, get out and look into the store, then go park his car in the lot. The man then returned with a shopping cart and smashed the window, before getting frustrated when the inside window wouldn't brake, and leave in a white Jeep

Officer Moses had kept the plate number he had checked earlier and later that morning the same Jeep was reported stolen in New Hampshire. Charles Vlahos, of 4 Nichols Road, Plaistow, N.H., was charged with the theft.

An alarm set off when the window broke set the time at 3 p.m., about three minutes before Officer Moses called in to check the plate on the Jeep in Shawsheen Square. Detectives obtained Mr. Vlahos fingerprints from Haverhill police and matched them with a set found on the grocery cart pushed into the window at Radio Shack. The suspect is also identifiable from the video.

An arrest warrant was issued for Mr. Vlahos this week, but he is still being held on other charges in New Hampshire.

There are no write-in candidates.

"I really don't know about turnout," Ms. Hanson said. "This year is unusual. We have a lot of people who live in Andover who are running."

Ms. Hanson wanted to remind unenrolled voters who vote in the primary that they will automatically be registered in the party for which they take a ballot, and that to get back on the unen-

Judge Borenstein helps land firm's financial support of CASA

Abused and neglected children in Andover and surrounding cities will continue to have a voice in court, in part due to the generous donation of the Stride Rite Corp. The Greater Lawrence Court Appointed Special Advocate (CASA) program trains volunteers to serve as advocates for children whose lives are in the hands of the Lawrence District Court because of abuse, neglect or abandonment.

Judge Isaac Borenstein of Andover recently nominated by Gov. William Weld to the Superior Court, was instrumental in founding the CASA program and wrote the Stride Rite Charitable Foundation to request its support of the program.

"Stride Rite has an exemplary reputation for charitable donations and community service. This year Stride Rite established a mentoring program in which 30 employees tutor inner-city students two hours a week for a year, on company time. Arnold Hiatt, long-time chairman of Stride Rite and now chairman of its charitable foundation, believes in teaching people the value of public service. This is what the CASA program is all about – people volunteering to help abused and neglected children," according to a CASA press release.

Stride Rite's $20,000 donation will help ensure the financial stability of CASA and allow the program to serve more children. In order to do so, however, CASA must find more individuals willing to donate their time to work with a child. According to the program's director, Valorie Faretra, "Our life blood is our volunteers. There are hundreds of children who need someone to speak up for them, to make certain they receive all the services they need and most importantly, to ensure that they are returned to their families or are adopted as soon as possible. The volunteers we have now are doing a tremendous job, but we desperately need more."

CASA will train new volunteers during the month of September. It takes about 10 to 15 hours a month to be a CASA volunteer. No special education or experience is required. To find out more about the program, contact Ms. Faretra at the Greater Lawrence CASA program, 45 Franklin St., Room 1071, Lawrence 012840 or call 685-0502.

Andover designer involved in home for children with AIDS

A new 10,000-square-foot home for children who have AIDS will open in Boston this month. The Children's AIDS Program (CAP) is a comprehensive respite program providing residential and daycare services to children with HIV infection and their families.

Marian Chatfield, Allied Member, ASID, of Chatfield Interiors in Andover, was selected to chair a committee of five by the New England Chapter of the American Society of Interior Designers, (NEASID), to design and furnish the home's play therapy room.

Boston Mayor Flynn officially opened the door of the new CAP home on Aug. 3 and handed over the front door key to Boston's interior design community, which volunteered time, talents and materials to complete the task of furnishing the residence. Nationally recognized designers William Hodgins, who is honorary chair, and Charles Spada, chairman of the design committee, along with 20 of Boston's best designers accepted the key.

NEASID is involved in serving the community through education, legislative and community outreach programs. The organization is dedicated to the pursuit of design excellence.

Though small, the room feels comfortable with narrow built-in storage shelf units designed to fit the space on either side of the sofa. Brightly colored child-size table and chairs define the scale of the room that is surrounded by a whimsical scene handpainted on the walls and ceiling. "The individuals and the companies we worked with to pull together the room design were all very generous and enthusiastic," said Ms. Chatfield. "It was a pleasure to work on a room for these special children."

How to make appropriate student course selection changes is PAC's tip of the month

The academic selection process that took place last spring should have positioned every student in the program that's right for them. However, there are those rare times when change is necessary.

The Parent Advisory Council tip of the month for September includes suggestions on how to make the appropriate changes.

The first step for the parent or student to take is to talk with the teacher of the class in question. If there is a problem, this gives the teacher the opportunity to resolve any problems personally.

If the outcome of this proves unsatisfactory, the student's guidance counselor should be contacted. Each counselor has a broader perspective and can give sound advice on any potential change in schedule.

The assistant principal would be the next in line for consultation. The freshman and sophomores would speak to Ellen Parker; while juniors and seniors would make appointments to speak with Steve Richardson.

Parents Advisory Council meeting Monday night

The Parents Advisory Council meeting will be held on Monday, Sept. 14 at 7:30 p.m. at the high school.

First day of school is today, Sept. 10

The first day of school is today, Thursday, Sept. 10, for most Andover public school students, except 10th-, 11th- and 12th-graders at the high school. Only ninth graders should report to the high school Thursday, Sept. 10.

Students in grades 10 through 12 will begin school tomorrow, Friday, Sept. 11. Ninth graders should report to the front of the school building where they will be met by teachers and administrators and directed to their homerooms. AHS homerooms were printed in the Townsman's Back to School section Thursday, Aug. 27.

DCS after-school enrichment courses begin Monday, Sept. 21, at Sanborn

Sanborn Elementary School's after-school enrichment courses, sponsored by the Department of Community Services, will begin the week of Sept. 21. The enthusiasm and success of last year's winter and spring programs have led to the continuation of specific courses and expansion into other areas, including visual and performing arts.

A synopsis of courses follows:

•Nature's Classroom: Candy Bachner, kindergarten teacher at Sanborn and Kaleidoscope instructor, presents this hands-on, life-science course that focuses on ecology and emphasizes appreciation of natural resources, including exploration of Sanborn's nature trails. For ages 5-10.

•Lots-Of-Logo: Suzanne Crowley, primary teacher and computer specialist, will lead this class for advanced Logo programmers ages 9-12. Children will learn sophisticated commands for elaborate programs.

•Let's Put on a Show: Terry Ingram, Sanborn's music teacher and West Middle School's drama coach and a musical director, introduces acting through creative movement, pantomime, role-playing, scene work and improvisation. Talents will be showcased in a final production; students will help write, produce and direct. For ages 9-12.

•Art from Many Lands: Kim McElfresh, Sanborn volunteer program developer, enrichment class leader and museum school art teacher, will focus students ages 5-8 on multi-cultural awareness and difference. Children will create a project each week reminiscent of a particular culture.

More Wizard Juniors: Diane Hoots, former elementary and middle school science teacher again offers this hands-on course packed with experiments, demonstrations, games and creative writing exercises from physical and earth sciences. Students will take home a completed project each week. For ages 8-12.

Chemistry Magic: Ms. Hoots offers a class where students, ages 8-12, learn about solids, liquids, gases, acids and bases, combustion and other chemical reactions with safe, hands-on experiments and demonstrations. Each week students receive a take-home experiment.

Introduction to Ham Radio: Electronic circuits designer Penn Clower, former Sanborn parent, has been a licensed amateur for 25 years. This 10-week course will explore the basics of shortwave radio, electronic circuits and communication via code, voice, computers and even satellites. Students will be prepared to pass the amateur exam at the end of the course. For grades 7-12.

•Fantasy Adventure: Andover High School student Jesse Recinos invites children ages 9-12 to escape to the challenge and excitement of the Dungeons and Dragons game through role-playing.

All classes will be held at Sanborn Elementary School and will be held for approximately eight weeks. They are open to all children townwide.

Specific days and times for each course are listed in the DCS fall catalog. For more information, call the DCS office.

LOW BACK PAIN

Acute vs Chronic

Acute low back pain is a sharp pain that just began. The sooner effective treatment is sought the sooner you will feel better. The only way to prevent Chronic back pain from occurring is to have your Acute back pain treated.

Chronic back pain is Acute back pain that was never treated effectively. Chronic back pain is a long-standing back pain that is achy and bothersome but is less intense than Acute back pain.

"Acute and Chronic back pain patients of Chiropractors were three times more satisfied with the treatment they received than were patients of MDs."

Western Journal of Medicine, March 1989

Women's Health Care

Your Dental HEALTH

by Richard D. Hopgood, D.M.D.

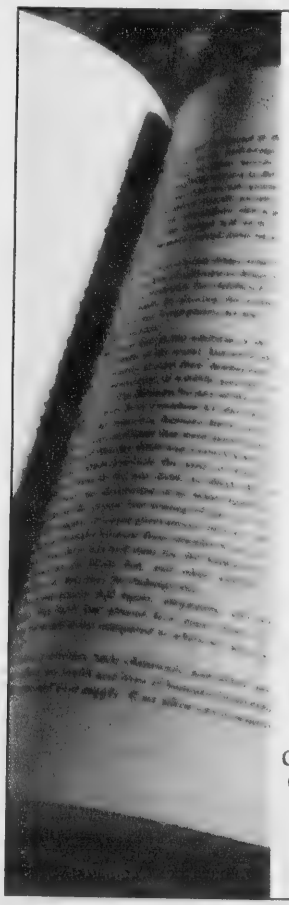

OPEN TO PLAQUE ATTACK

A woman's susceptibility to gum disease has been found to be directly related to her hormonal cycles. Increases in such hormones as estrogen leave female gum tissue more vulnerable to the negative influence of the bacteria associated with plaque. If women fail to respond to this heightened risk for gum disease with scrupulous attention to flossing and brushing, they may well experience tender, swollen and bleeding gums. These are symptoms of gingivitis, the first stage of gum disease, which can lead to more serious periodontal disease. This hormone-related sensitivity to plaque is likely to occur during puberty, during the days prior to menstruation, and during pregnancy. Increased attention to oral hygiene before and during these times can help women avert gum problems.

Realizing the relationship between dental health and a patients' overall health, your family dentist uses all methods of diagnosis, preventive and restorative care to promote total patient well-being. If you have dental concerns you'd like to discuss or to make an appointment, please call 475-2431. For gentle dentistry for the entire family, we are here for you at 296 Lowell Street, Rt 133, with easy access off Rt 93, Mon & Thur 10-8, Tues & Fri 8-6 & by appointment.

P.S. It is estimated that 30 to 60 percent of pregnant women develop gingivitis.

Everything looks fuzzy. You think it might be cataracts. Who can help you see an ophthalmologist?

Paul Cronin of Andover

COMPARE

Republican candidates for U.S. Congress

Michael Conway of Lowell

Croninism vs. Conway's Way

Sponsored Income Tax Surcharge

Cronin wanted Congress to impose a graduated surcharge on the federal income tax of up to 25% when he served a term in Congress. He was the only member of our state delegation to support it.

Lowell Sun Washington Bureau 10/11/74.

Steadfast Tax Opponent

Has always opposed tax hikes. Signed the "Taxpayer Protection Pledge" to oppose any effort to increase the tax burden. As the founder and owner of a small business in Lowell, Michael Conway knows firsthand that Congress has been over-taxing, over-regulating and over-spending.

Put Social Security at Risk

"Republican Paul Cronin, a former congressman from Andover, said Social Security entitlements should be on the table when considering how to cut the deficit."

Lawrence Eagle-Tribune, April 17, 1992

Protect Social Security

"I will oppose cutting Social Security benefits. Instead, we need to create the tools to cut wasteful spending — a line item veto, a balanced budget amendment, sunrise/sunset laws, implement more savings from the Grace Commission... Congress should set an example by reducing its own staff, perks and privileges."

Takes False Credit

Cronin once ran an advertisement taking credit for federal contracts won by Wang and Raytheon. "I am not aware of any involvement he (Cronin) has had with our contracts over the past year or two," said the president of Wang. And Raytheon Company officials issued a statement saying "we are not in a position to comment on this because we have no specific knowledge of any help provided by Congressman Cronin for this government work."

Lowell Sun, November 4, 1974

Has Not Raised False Hopes

"As Congressman, I would work as a catalyst for local economic growth and share credit with all concerned. I'd promote this area to out-of-state businesses interested in re-locating; work with community leaders in our cities to revitalize distressed areas; use my district offices to help the unemployed connect with potential employers; urge area inustry to expand job re-training programs; encourage local companies to offer apprenticeships to high school students; and help struggling businesses cut through red tape."

Conflict of Interest

Cronin is on the board of Massport. He had a Massport lawyer compile a list of businesses that may have profited by his votes and he gave that list to his campaign fundraising committee. He told the Lawrence Eagle-Tribune he did this to avoid conflict-of-interest fundraising, but refused to disclose the list.

Cronin "says he hopes to raise as much as $1 million for the primary and general election."

Lawrence Eagle-Tribune, "Conway wants Cronin's Massport links," July 14, 1992; the quote is from the Northwest Weekly edition of The Boston Globe, July 19, 1992.

Set a New Example

"If elected, I will not use Congressional staff for campaign purposes and I will not spend tax money on mass mailings. If elected, I will put my business in a blind trust or sell it. As congressman, I would reimburse the U.S. Treasury for perks and benefits not available to the average citizen. I will vote against any Congressional perk, pay hike or pension increase. And I would not seek re-election beyond eight years."

Labeled "The Great Deceiver"

For the two years he served in Congress, Cronin led people to believe that he had as many as eleven oil companies interested in locating an oil refinery in the Lowell/Dracut area. But he wouldn't name them. After he lost the election, the Lowell Sun stated: "Nobody to this day knows the name of a single oil company that was ever, at any time, interested."

A lot of unemployed people in the area had their hopes raised by Cronin's claims. After the election, The Lowell Sun ran a long, blistering editorial.

". . . our readers must be asking themselves what kind of newsmen we are at The Sun to have swallowed such a line of junk but we did and went along with the Congressman because we had confidence in him — at that time — and trusted him (as a lot of people did). We made a mistake in doing so that we now regret but, at last, this story is being told, the story that we have refrained from telling for so long because of our former trust in the methods of the Congressman that has now been replaced by complete disdain for his honesty and credibility. We wouldn't believe him today if he told us it was raining outside"

Lowell Sun, "The Grand Deception," February 2, 1975

Not a Career Politician

"Our problems are not going to be solved by professional politicians in Washington. It's time to put our faith in practical, hometown solutions. For example:

"For urban schools in our district, I want to help create an after-hours 'curriculum of hope.' We will ask successful role models — executives, athletes, artists, all kinds of people — to talk with students about how hard work pays off in the real world. We can teach practical skills such as: how to look for a job, how to prepare for a job interview, how to get an apprenticeship, how to start a business, how to get into college . . . Many of our urban students need role models, practical advice, and above all, hope.

"I will also urge area businesses to 'adopt a classroom.' Teachers often have great ideas to inspire their students creatively but lack the resources — arts materials, computers, funds for a field trip — to carry out a project. Many local businesses would be happy to help, if asked.

"I am not a career politician. I'm a citizen who believes it's time for reform in Washington . . . and time for creative, practical solutions here at home."

JOHN DESMOND

STATE REPRESENTATIVE

EXPERIENCE in EDUCATION: JOHN DESMOND is the candidate most familiar with the problems confronting our schools, and, as a result, he's the candidate most able to bring about constructive reform. He has spent 16 years as a classroom teacher. He has worked with student groups, parents, teachers, administrators and union officials in many areas concerning education. A vote for JOHN DESMOND is a vote for a person who is immediately able to work with every state and local official dealing in education.

REAL LIFE EXPERIENCE: JOHN DESMOND is the only candidate who has a true understanding of what the people are experiencing as a result of this recession. Having been victimized by cutbacks resulting from Proposition 2 1/2, JOHN DESMOND knows what it's like to be without work. He knows the fear felt by families who have no medical insurance. He understands the desperation felt by people who are threatened with the loss of their homes to foreclosure. As a father of two boys, he knows the anxiety felt by every parent as they send their children to schools that are struggling to meet the needs of the community. As far as these areas are concerned, JOHN DESMOND can be a true representative of the people.

THE COURAGE of HIS CONVICTIONS: JOHN DESMOND has had the courage to speak out publicly against the liberal course on which the democratic leadership has taken our state and our party over the last 20 years. JOHN DESMOND has called for a more moderate and conservative movement for the Democrats. As a result, he has neither a major financier, nor does he have the support of the local democratic organizations. Instead, JOHN DESMOND is counting on the only support that really matters, that of the people themselves.

West Parish Nursery has get-acquainted barbeque

West Parish Nursery School new and returning students renewed old friendships and met new friends at a "get-acquainted barbecue" last Wednesday, Sept. 2.

The children and their families dined on hamburgers, hot dogs, cake and custom-made sundaes. Children's performer, Kevin Devine of Watertown, better known as "Mr. Kevin," led the children in an hour of song and silliness.

This year Loetitia Nelson joins Sandy Schmuhl and Carol Harnden on the West Parish Nursery School staff. Ms. Nelson is a licensed speech pathologist who evaluated students with speech, language and learning disabilities in the San Antonio, Texas, school district. She also established a Mother's Day Out program, which doubled enrollment in its first year of operation, the school said.

School begins Sept. 10 for nursery school students attending four days a week. On Sept. 14 the older half of the class attends school and on Sept. 15 the younger half of the class meets. The entire class joins for the first time on Wednesday, Sept. 16.

Understanding Chiropractic

by Mark F. DeLorenzo, D.C.

GOING WITH THE FLOW

Preliminary research is beginning to uncover the mechanism by which chronic stress contributes to high blood pressure and, finally, to heart disease. Researchers have found that when stress continually triggers the body's defense mechanism, the sympathetic (or involuntary) nervous system is induced to send signals that encourage the growth of smooth muscles on the inner walls of arteries. As this muscle grows, it narrows arterial passageways and thereby increasingly restricts the flow of blood. As a result, blood pressure increases. This piece of information points out the value of reducing stress through natural stress reduction methods. Because chiropractic views the body as the sum of its integrated systems, it has always recognized the need to reduce stress to maintain health.

Stress has become more common with our hectic lifestyles and many commitments. If you suffer with stress, chronic headaches, or other health problems, please call us at DELORENZO CHIROPRACTIC GROUP, 475-5042, for an appointment. We offer natural and safe care for the entire family and accept only those patients we sincerely feel we can help. Our office is located at 15 Central Street.

P.S. Using drugs to reduce stress is an artificial treatment of symptoms.

CHEF'S CORNER

Chicland

Rick Magill

This recipe comes to Townsman readers from the popular Andover restaurant Chicland. Chef Rick Magill provides a refreshing change to the usual ways of serving chicken, presenting instead a Spiced Chicken in Yogurt Sauce dish that gets its start on the grill. Dinner variety like this is truly "the spice of life."

Chicken Korma
(Spiced Chicken in Yogurt Sauce)

- 3 lbs. fresh chicken breasts and legs
- 1 tbs. salt
- 1/4 cup cooking oil
- 1 cup onion flakes
- 1 cup water
- 1/2 cup butter
- 1 tsp. whole clove
- 4 whole cardamon seeds, cracked
- 1 tsp. whole black pepper
- 1/2 inch cinnamon stick
- 2 bay leaves
- 1 cup yogurt
- 1/2 tsp. turmeric
- 1 tsp. coriander
- 1 tsp. cumin seed
- 1/2 tsp. ground ginger
- 1/2 tsp. red pepper
- 1 tsp. garlic powder
- 1 cup tomato puree
- 1 cup water

Season chicken with salt. Rub all the chicken lightly with oil. Grill the chicken until it is lightly browned. Mix onion flakes with the first amount of water. Let it stand 10 to 12 minutes. Melt butter and add softened onions. Cook over low heat until lightly browned. Stir. Tie the cloves, cardamon seed, whole black pepper, cinnamon and bay leaves in a cheesecloth bag and add to onions. Add chicken and yogurt. Cook over moderate heat 30 minutes. Add remaining ingredients. Cover and cook 15 minutes or until sauce has thickened. Allow chicken to stand in sauce 30 minutes before serving. Serve with rice.

Merrimack Valley Hospice will offer a bereavement support group beginning Monday, Oct. 5, at Sacred Heart Church Parish Center (across from the church at 165 South Main St.), Bradford, from 7 to 8:30 p.m. for 10 consecutive weeks.

The support group is for anyone who has experienced the death of a loved one and would like some group support in dealing with the loss. According to Judith Thomson, co-bereavement coordinator for Merrimack Valley Hospice, the support group offers an opportunity for participants to give and receive support and share ways for moving on with daily living. "It is helpful for those in the group to see others at various stages of recovery from their grief," Rev. Thomson states. "The healing process is not a smooth progression, but the group's support can help a person through the rough times."

The group is free and open to the public. Preregistration is required. Call Merrimack Valley Hospice at 470-1615 or 800-933-5593 to register.

Super Tuesday

It's easy to tear things down. It's easy to say what one will do. It's even easier to shout cliches and catch-phrases ..."politics as usual," "time for a change" and "I will speak for you."

But every once in a while, a person comes along who doesn't play the games of politics. A person who takes representing you seriously. A person who has the determination to stay the course with quiet effectiveness and service to his constituents.

Every once in a while. Like now.

Brion Cangiamila has served with distinction in the House of Representatives, and in the communities of this district. He has the common sense of a businessman, and he cares because he is one of us. Not another lawyer, not a political hack. Not another politician climbing up the ladder.

Brion serves because he believes he can make a difference in the lives of hard-working people. People like you, who need tax relief, relief from the recession, and who need to believe, again, that the future is bright.

Brion Cangiamila will be a great Senator. With your vote.

September 15th.

With your help, it'll be a super Tuesday. For all of us.

Teachers, administrators describe the ideal student

Grace Jamison, who has been teaching kindergarten students in Andover for more than 20 years. She is currently assigned to West Elementary.

Children must be 5 by Sept. 1, to enter kindergarten in the public schools. Children that young, said Ms. Jamison, don't have to know their ABCs, but should be ready to learn them.

They should be able to listen well, take directions and perform simple tasks by themselves, such as opening their own snacks and be able to clean up after themselves, she said.

Some of the children who enter kindergarten haven't attended nursery school or participated in playgroups. That can be a real disadvantage, Ms. Jamison said, if they haven't developed the basic social skills their peers have.

Sometimes good-intentioned parents want to do too much for their children. In most instances, according to Ms. Jamison, the 5-year-olds are able to do the tasks themselves.

Some parents want teachers to send home all kinds of notes on what their child is doing and what they should send to school with their child.

"My goal as a kindergarten teacher is to help a child build self confidence and inner discipline. To see a child learn from his collective experiences at home and at school and then be able to synthesize the information is very encouraging.

"I ask them to go home and tell their parents what they should bring to school the next day. It is up to the child to remember or forget. Children that young can absorb this type of information if it is explained simply and clearly," Ms. Jamison said.

Darcy Sweeney, executive director of the Andover School of Montessori, in North Andover, agrees that most pre-school and kindergarten programs are looking for children with potential to learn and who have age-appropriate developmental skills. Those include simple gross and fine motor skills such as walking, running and holding and using small objects – crayons, for instance.

"At (the pre-school level) we are looking for simple things. We want the children to be toilet trained, be ready to interact with their peers and be able to be apart from their parents for a few hours each day," Ms. Sweeney said.

She said her school's goal is to stimulate a child's natural curiosity for learning.

"Parents don't need to push their children or set goals for them at this age. A child learns to walk when she is ready. A parent doesn't need to say when it is time to learn. It is just the same with other things a child needs to learn," she said.

Pike School

Judy Camber, director of admission at Pike School, a private pre-kindergarten through ninth-grade school on Sunset Rock Road, said her school is looking for the same potential from its applicants as other elementary schools.

"We're looking for a child who is developmentally ready to learn basic concepts, to cooperate and work in a group and take directions and share. These abilities show us that children are socially ready to enter school and they are the ones who contribute the most to the classroom," she said.

When parents apply for admission to Pike, the school invites the families to a private interview so Pike can see how the child interacts with his parents and unfamiliar adults. The next step is seeing how the child reacts in a playgroup of other applicants.

Preparing for the first day

Children can sense when their parents are anxious, said Ms. Jamison, so parents need to be aware what type of signals they are sending as the first day of school approaches.

Ms. Sweeney believes it is just as important that parents be ready to separate from their children for a few hours each morning as the child from his parents.

"The first day of school can be very difficult for both children and parents. Parents need to feel that the school and its program is

'Parents need to be aware what type of signals they are sending as the first day of school approaches.'

ANDOVER TOWNSMAN

The ideal student wants to learn

an OK place for their child to spend the morning," she said.

Ms. Jamison suggests practicing getting ready for the first day of school a couple of times before the actual day.

"If the child is going on the bus practice walking to the stop and reassure them that you will be there when they return. Parents should give their children a kiss goodbye in the house, not at the bus stop when the bus comes, because all those last minute kisses add up when the drivers are picking up hundreds of kids," she said.

Elementary and middle school

Liz Cahoon has taught elementary and middle-school children in Andover for more than 29 years. Most recently she has taught fifth and fourth grade at Bancroft Elementary.

"A just plain positive attitude and enthusiasm for learning go a long way with me. I don't care how smart a kid is. If they have enthusiasm for learning and what they are doing they can go very far," she said.

Support from home is essential, Ms. Cahoon said. When teachers and parent work together and agree on expectations, students can set goals for themselves.

"I look for individual progress. Every child is different and will progress at a different rate," she said.

When children are held to their own standards, not those of another student, she said, they can take pride in their accomplishments, not feel they are playing a never-ending game of catch-up with their neighbor.

At Pike School, first-graders should be ready to learn how to read, Ms. Camber said. By the second grade, students are given a reading and math test. In addition, she said, second-graders applying to Pike will also be asked to write a simple story and illustrate it. Students applying for the fourth and fifth grades must take a standardized reading comprehension, general abilities and a Pike math test.

Marie Galinski, director of St. Augustine's School, said in addition to being enthusiastic, students need to be well prepared to start the school day.

"Parents can help by making sure their kids have a good, nourishing breakfast, that they've had enough rest the night before and that they have the appropriate supplies," she said.

Secondary school

Mark McQuillan, Andover superintendent of schools, believes 21st-century employers are going to demand a lot more from high school and college graduates than ever before. He and the School Committee will be looking at what every student should know by the time they graduate from Andover High School. They hope to include the business community, as well as parents in the discussions.

"My expectations for every student in the Andover school system is that they come to school prepared to work hard and that they be respectful of differences they see in the classroom. We want students to respect each other," he said.

As Andover educators, parents and business people begin to collaborate on what the schools should be doing to prepare students for adult life in the 21st century, Dr. McQuillan listed a few of his expectations.

Students, he said, should have a broad knowlege of literature, arts, languages, math, science, social history and geography. They should be educated in physical and mental health topics.

"We need to teach these in a way that is interconnected. Kids need to learn about problem solving and using their knowledge in the real world," Dr. McQuillan said.

He believes that in addition to higher-level thinking and computing skills, students need to know how to communicate effectively orally and in writing.

"I also think (educators and community members) have a civic responsibility to help kids reach a point where they make moral and ethical choices and understand how their behavior affects other people," Dr. McQuillan said.

Walter Morris, director of admission for Pike School in grades six through nine, said students who apply to his school need to have a strong transcript from their previous school.

"We pay very close attention to transcripts and to teacher recommendations," he said.

"We do look at SSAT (standardized tests) scores and historically we look for a student who scores in the top 50 percentile," Mr. Morris said.

"We also look at a student during his interview to see if he is outgoing, if he is a leader and if he'll be happy in a small structured environment like Pike," he said.

Jane Fried, acting dean of admissions at Phillips Academy, said PA looks at SSAT scores but also places high value on previous grades and recommendations. She said PA looks for scores in the top 80 percentile in most cases.

"We also believe a student's academic record is a good indicator of their potential to flourish," Ms. Fried said.

PA requires all students to take three years of a second language or test at that level. If a student has some background in a second language it is helpful, she said.

"We are also looking for students who have interests outside academic, who can contribute to the school culture whether it be in athletics, music, drama, the arts or community service.

"How they approach their extracurricular experiences shows us they are open to trying new things," she said.

Because PA accepts boarding as well as day students, Ms. Fried said the school also looks for a certain degree of maturity when it is screening applicants.

"Andover looks very much like a college, and in many ways students are dealing with the same issues a college student deals with, but at PA they are much younger. We know that we are dealing with high-school-age kids and we have 24-hour support for them if they need it."

Ellen Parker, assistant principal at Andover High School, said "a nice feature about our school is that we have open access and everyone who wants to can attend. We have such a diverse mix of backgrounds, ethnicities and learning styles. We are constantly learning from the students and they are learning from one another," she said.

"A student who will work hard to be the best she can be every day is a student I want to work with," she said.

College students

Dennis Farrell, dean of admissions and financial aid at Merrimack College in North Andover, said his school doesn't have an "ideal" student profile.

"We like to admit a varied spectrum of students. That way not only do students get a fine education in the classroom, but they also get a variety of experiences outside the classroom in the college community," Mr. Farrell said.

He said Merrimack's goal is to expand its student body beyond a white, middle-class campus.

"We are looking for international students, black, Hispanic and Asian students to come to Merrimack," he said.

"We also like to see that students participated in some activity outside their school, whether it be a part-time job, community service or sports or student clubs," Mr. Farrell said.

Richard Pastor, director of financial aid at Northern Essex Community College in Haverhill, said his school has open admissions for most programs. Programs such as sign language interpretation and those in the human service field do screen applicants because of the limited seats.

He said about one-quarter of NECC students apply right out of high school and the rest of the student body is a mix of adult full- and part-time students.

"We have all kinds of motivational mixes here. Some students come at nights because they work during the day. Others are retired senior citizens," Mr. Pastor said.

"We are looking for students who really want to be here and want to learn," he said, echoing the other educators interviewed for this article.

TOWNTALK

Three Andover High School students recently attended a leadership workshop sponsored by the Massachusetts National Guard and the Governor's Alliance Against Drugs. Cheryl Battles, David Charland and Erika Gulezian were three of 108 teens to attend Project QUEST, Quality and Unique Experience to Support Teens, an eight-day training course at Camp Edwards on Cape Cod designed to teach teens about alcohol and drug abuse and prevention.

Erika Gulezian, daughter of Glen Gulezian 12 Chandler Road, repels down a tower during a recent eight-day leadership training workshop for teens in alcohol and drug use prevention at Camp Edwards, on Cape Cod, as National Guardsman Paul Norton lends encouragement.

Cheryl Battles, daughter of Richard and Linda Battles of 27 Abbot Bridge Drive, works on her knot-tying technique during a recent eight-day leadership training workshop for teens in alcohol and drug use prevention at Camp Edwards, on Cape Cod.

Brion M. Cangiamila

Brion Cangiamila

The economy is the state's most pressing issue, according to Rep. Cangiamila.

"The Senate must take the lead in stimulating the economy by creating tax incentives for individuals, companies and families while holding the line on state spending," he said.

Legislators need to aggressively restructure state regulations to encourage business, Rep. Cangiamila said.

"We need to create enterprise zones to encourage existing business to expand and remain in Massachusetts. We need to further cut capital gains and income taxes for individuals to put more money in their pockets," he said.

But education is also of critical importance, he said.

"I personally feel the need to really overhaul the (education) system," he said.

He supports most of Gov. Weld's education reform package and agrees with performance-based evaluation of teachers.

Rep. Cangiamila described himself as a fiscal conservative. "Government spends the taxpayers' money and I want to insure that it is spent in a manner that provides the maximum services for the lowest cost," he said.

Rep. Cangiamila is neither pro-choice nor pro-life. "We must do all that we can to protect and respect life," he said. "It is a woman's right to make decisions regarding herself, not the government's."

He doesn't support Gov. Weld's proposal to allow 16-year-olds to have abortions, he said, or to allow abortions to be performed up to the ninth month of pregnancy, unless there is a medical emergency.

The answer to health care is providing tax incentives that are almost a direct write-off in proportion to the contributions, Rep. Cangiamila said.

At the same time, the laws and the grounds that constitute malpractice need to be reformed to reduce costs. "We must eliminate costly lawsuits and cumbersome administrative processes that only add to the cost of care without improving the quality of that care," he said.

Currently, doctors put patients through unnecessary and costly tests to protect themselves from malpractice suits. He gave an example of patient who has a diagnosis of an ulcer, but is put through costly tests for cancers and other bodily ailments because the doctor has to cover all the bases.

Instead of more local aid, Rep. Cangiamila would like to see a better distribution structure for current funds.

"The state needs to restructure the formula to distribute local aid more fairly and predictably. The present method of distributing local aid is neither for, nor is it responsive to, the unique needs of our communities," he said.

He proposes a distribution structure similar to the one recently used to distribute the school aid, which allocated $100 per student regardless of where they lived.

"I do not support gun control," Rep. Cangiamila said.

Sen. McGovern is a hard worker, puts a lot of time and energy into her position, and has accomplished a great deal for the district, Rep. Cangiamila said, but he wasn't all praise about her.

"Like most Democrats, she supports a costly, bloated state government paid for by ever increasing taxes," he said.

"Gov. Weld has worked hard to turn this state around. He has the political courage to make the difficult decisions necessary to move Massachusetts forward," Rep. Cangiamila said. "Since 1991, I have been working closely with Gov. Weld to straighten out the mess the Dukakis Democrats left behind."

His recent experience in the Legislature separates him from James Gaffney, his Republican opponent, who served in the Legislature in the 1970s, Rep. Cangiamila said.

"You're talking about a world of difference between the '70s and the '90s," Mr. Cangiamila said. "I understand the issues today on today's terms. My opponent doesn't... The other thing is I don't know if Beacon Hill needs another lawyer."

James J. Gaffney

Party: Republican
Age: 49
Address: Tewksbury
Job: Self-employed attorney
Personal: He and his wife, Mary, have two teen-agers, Joe and Shauna. Mr. Gaffney is a veteran of two combat tours in Vietnam.

James Gaffney

James Gaffney wants the Senate seat because he wants to bring more jobs to Massachusetts.

The economy is the most pressing issue for the Senate, according to Mr. Gaffney. "The Senate, and state government generally, must keep moving in the direction of containing state spending.

"We have to reform the budget process to complete budget deliberations before the final weeks of the fiscal year. The process should be changed to limit 11th-hour "feeding frenzy" type increases."

He seeks reductions in taxes and spending.

"Budget cutting must now move beyond lopping off programs and cutting benefit levels. We need closer scrutiny of the waste in remaining programs," he said.

Welfare must become a bridge instead of an endless road to nowhere, according to Mr. Gaffney. Workfare and mandatory job training should be implemented.

About his philosophy, he said his answers would "put me on the conservative side of most questions without the need to apply the label."

About abortion, he said, "Although I am distressed by the number of pregnancies terminated this way, I would not substitute my judgment for that of a woman confronting the decision, except on the advanced stages of the pregnancy term. I would not, on the other hand, spend taxpayers' funds to provide abortion on demand. I would not support legislation eliminating parental notification and consent for minors," Mr. Gaffney said. "I would like to see government and politics removed from the abortion issue."

"Containing health care costs may be one of the most formidable challenges confronting state government. Medicaid is the largest state budget account and health insurance costs are of increasing amounts of company and family income... After election, I would invite people to serve on a panel to share district experiences and views on health care cost and problems.

"The state's handling of local aid has been damaging to municipal government in several respects. Towns and cities have seen local aid decline as a percentage of state spending from close to 25 percent to approximately 15 percent. This trend ignores the reality that towns and cities have the major burden for educating our children and protecting our safety," he said.

"Including local aid in the state's midnight budget deliberations has hindered town planning and forced make-up town meetings. Local aid should be fixed as a percentage of state revenue and we need to start building that percentage back up. This dependable increased level of local aid might be a better foundation for education reform than one or two time appropriations that could disappear in the state's priorities shift.

"I believe in the right of citizens to own firearms for legitimate sport and self-protection purposes," Mr. Gaffney said.

"I disagree with Sen. McGovern's spending policies of several years ago. Her recent budget actions have exhibited more restraint and her analysis of 'budget busters' in state government could be helpful to people who want to get a handle on the spiraling growth of these items. She enjoys a good reputation for working with local officials in my town," he said.

"Gov. Weld took the kind of decisive action necessary to pull the state back from the brink of fiscal ruin two years ago and to keep the state above water this year. I support the cost-cutting and the reduction of goals of his fiscal program except to the degree that the budget has been balanced on the backs of the towns and cities with local aid cuts," Mr. Gaffney said.

Paul Lambert

Paul Lambert is taking advantage of what he sees as an opportunity for change in his run for the Senate.

"This is my first shot at elected public office because, as an educated professional struggling to make ends meet in the recession, I believe that this seat is the perfect vehicle to pursue the changes we, the middle-class, need and seek."

The most pressing issue for the Senate is the economy, according to Mr. Lambert.

"It is working in cooperation with private industry, the governor and House of Representatives to put an end to this recession by bringing in manufacturing jobs, increasing the funding and efficiency of our schools, and increasing local aid to towns and cities across the Commonwealth in order to maintain the local services we expect and deserve," he said.

"Presently, I do not foresee raising taxes. However, if necessary to maintain our essential services, I would propose raising our state meals tax from 5 percent to 6 percent as this does not appear to be a great burden to any one particular group of people," Mr. Lambert said.

"...Through job vouchers and targeted wage subsidies, we can give growing manufacturers incentives to expand and/or relocate to the Merrimack Valley. Job vouchers and targeted wage subsidies would be used to hire and train people on unemployment and welfare in permanent positions within a manufacturing industry. The Commonwealth would make these payments in lieu of paying out unemployment and welfare checks.

"Targeted wage subsidies would be paid to those formerly unemployed or on welfare by the new employers in lieu of the state's taxes the employer would otherwise be obligated to pay. Again, this would only be for an initial short period of time.

He also proposes a three-part welfare program in which some participants would provide day-care services and act as teaching assistants, while a second group would be provided job training and education and a third group would provide services for towns and cities that need, but can't afford, them.

"Pat McGovern truly cares about and continues to take good care of our communities," he said. "The only negative note that comes to mind is the tax she proposed on services.

"I worry that Gov. Weld has forgotten the needs of the middle class, especially regarding public education.

"I am pro-choice, but I wish to ensure that women, and especially unemancipated women, receive the counseling they may need prior to making their choice," Mr. Lambert said.

"I am in favor of establishing a national health insurance system," he said.

But the state shouldn't wait and should start its own health insurance system, Mr. Lambert said.

He advocated a system now that ensures that the elderly would not have to worry about being able to afford medical care and treatment because of the gap between Medicare and private insurance.

"Our parents and grandparents paid their share as they raised us and contributed to society as a whole," he said.

"I will file legislation to ensure that a set minimum percentage of state income tax, fees and lottery revenue is placed directly into local aid each year and that the guaranteed minimum figures (the cherry sheets) are sent out by March 15 each year," Mr. Lambert said.

"I believe that I am fiscally conservative and socially liberal, but in all honesty, it truly depends on the issue," Mr. Lambert said.

"I do not see the need for automatic weapons in the hands of the average person. If the need is for hunting, it would appear to take the sport out of the hunt. I favor a reasonable waiting period and background check for those who wish to purchase and own firearms and especially handguns," Mr. Lambert said.

John O'Brien

Party: Democrat
Age: 32
Address: 107 High St.
Education: Bachelor's degree in international relations, Brown University; Juris doctor, Suffolk University Law School
Personal: Moved to Andover in 1978. He and his wife, Kathleen, have a son, Matthew, 11 months.

John O'Brien has always enjoyed politics, views it as a public service and said this is a particularly good time to run for first-timers because of the strong sentiment for change.

John O'Brien

"I have a resume with a broad array of experience that would be appropriate and very helpful to the district in bringing about the change that we need," Mr. O'Brien said.

His experience is as general counsel to the Senate Ways and Means Committee, service on the Andover Planning Board, membership on Andover's Affordable Housing Partnership Committee, and two years practicing law with the firm of Asoian & Tully in Andover.

"And being a homeowner, husband and taxpayer here in town certainly distinguishes me from the other candidates in the Democratic field."

His continuing to serve on the Planning Board is not a conflict of interest, Mr. O'Brien said. He stayed on the board when he decided to run for office because it was short-handed and was bringing on new members, he said.

"I think that if I win the primary, however, there is enough experience on the board that I should step down, but more for time commitments than because of the conflict issue."

The most pressing issues for the Senate revolve around keeping the budget, and fiscal situation in general, stable, according to Mr. O'Brien.

"If the economy remains slow in recovery, (it is important that) at least the state keep its books balanced," he said.

The second most pressing issue should be education, he said.

While Massachusetts doesn't have a natural resource like oil to boost its economy, it always has had an educated work force. "We offer people who are well trained and educated."

"(Pat McGovern) always told the truth and she always leveled with people," Mr. O'Brien said of his former boss. "That was her strength as a leader, and I hope I can live up to that standard.

"A different strength that I bring to the job is my experience in local government.

"The state has to almost totally revamp the way it deals with cities and towns," Mr. O'Brien said.

He supports the guidelines of ballot Question 5 from the 1990 election, which called for 40 percent of all state revenues to be returned to cities and towns as local aid. If 40 percent is not the proper number, "we have to use Question 5 as a framework to give cities and towns a direct and predictable stream of revenue," Mr. O'Brien said.

He also wants to combine all local services under one existing cabinet office in state government.

"I probably am labeled as a moderate," Mr. O'Brien said.

The good side of Gov. Weld is that he was new to the whole budget situation and was able to say "no new taxes" and say "we're going to stop the slide," Mr. O'Brien said.

"He didn't do it alone, which he would like to have you believe," said Mr. O'Brien, who added that Gov. Weld goes too far. "He is a true libertarian, meaning hands off on everything."

While people want more efficient government, people also want some activism, especially in areas of education, public safety and environment, he said.

Mr. O'Brien takes pride in Paul Tsongas' endorsement of his candidacy and said the Democrats need to create a better relationship with business.

Under a business incentive program, he would support a targeted capital gains investment credit. He would also support a change in the treatment of small businesses that received a higher tax burden in 1988. He proposes to return to 1988 levels.

And business should make a commitment to help government in certain key areas, including education, he said.

"Business should provide a real constructive analysis of what we do wrong and right in our schools in terms of preparing kids for the work force," Mr. O'Brien said.

Mr. O'Brien is pro-choice.

"In the end, both for business and the consumer, the answer to health care is a national health-care plan," Mr. O'Brien said.

Mr. O'Brien supports a seven-day waiting period before issuing a gun permit, but said he recognizes a citizen's right to bear arms.

Had he been in the Legislature at the time, he would have supported Boston's request to ban assault weapons in the city because it was through a home-rule petition and because the police were asking for it.

"The issue in the primary is experience, and I mean that as life experience," Mr. O'Brien said, when asked about his opponents. "Sen. Wall is a legend, but I think that I can better deal with the problems of today."

Mr. McLaughlin has two years left of law school, is a full-time student and is only 23 years old, Mr. O'Brien said. This is Mr. Lambert's first try at any type of community office and he is also a new attorney, Mr. O'Brien said.

William X. Wall

Party: Democrat
Age: 88
Address: Lawrence
Education: Juris doctor, Suffolk University Law School
Job: Lawrence city councilor
Personal: Widower of Hedwig Sadowska and has five children: Mary, Barbara, Margaret, William X. Wall Jr., and Marian M. Rennie.

For William Wall, a return to the Senate would just be another chapter in a life of public service.

"My entire life has been spent in public service, as a state representative, state senator and presently, city councilor for the city of Lawrence. I have always been a 24-hour public servant," Mr. Wall said.

William Wall

As a former state senator, Mr. Wall said he was instrumental in establishing the Greater Lawrence Technical School, in Andover. He was also responsible for the creation of the Lawrence Experimental Station, which pioneered drinking water filtration and sewer treatment technology, he said.

"There is no substitute for experience," Mr. Wall said, and he vowed to continue to represent the concerns of his constituents.

Mr. Wall describes himself as a "conservative."

The Senate's most pressing business is to keep the budget under control and a create health plan for all citizens, according to Mr. Wall.

How would he reduce the budget?

"Don't spend any unnecessary money," he said. "Simple as that. Cut what you don't need. Eliminate (unnecessary) jobs.".

"Work to enhance the business climate," he said.

How?

"By attracting new industries here, probably give them a tax cut or something," he said.

Once the industries were here, simply raise the taxes again, Mr. Wall said.

"Work to bring labor, management and experts together to improve productivity," he said.

"I am against abortion, not only because of religious convictions, but also from medical and scientific knowledge. We are destroying not a fetus but an unborn child. I believe life begins at the moment of conception," Mr. Wall said.

"I would say the state should provide universal health care in combating the yearly rise in medical costs," he said.

But Mr. Wall stopped short of offering a specific plan.

"This is an issue too complex as an individual and I would leave this solution to the experts and work with them," he said.

"Common sense would dictate that state aid should be given to those cities and towns most in need," Mr. Wall said.

He vowed to fight for an increase in local aid to cities and towns "through governmental investments and not taxation."

Asked about his stand on gun control, he said, "It depends on how you define gun control. I am in favor of a reasonable delay prior to licensing," he said.

About Sen. McGovern, he said, "I would give Sen. McGovern a gold star for her Senate service. Everyone will admit that she handled the Ways and Means in brilliant fashion," he said.

"I could work with anybody, as my past record shows," he responded to a question about Gov. Weld.

He said he favors term limits for legislators.

Asked about his opinion of his opponents, Mr. Wall said, "I wish them good luck. I wish them all good luck," Mr. Wall said.

Relax and listen

Teachers and school administrators interviewed for the article in today's Townsman on the ideal student have excellent advice for parents.

The idea is to relax and not worry. Then children will do the same.

The trouble is, parents – especially new parents – often feel judged by teachers and administrators when their children first enter school.

Did I teach my child enough? Does she know as much as the other kindergartners? Will my son be rude? Will my daughter cry and forget her numbers?

The best advice for parents is to do what their older children would advise: Chill out.

If you relax, so will your child. If you are conflicted about your child entering school, your child will pick up on that anxiety and reflect it.

Teachers aren't as demanding as you might think. They want students to be rested, well fed, curious and courteous.

Worried your child doesn't know as much about reading or writing as the others? Stop worrying. He or she will learn the skills when ready.

If you are an experienced parent, our advice is to be involved in your child's school experiences. Be involved but not pushy.

Talk about her classes. Understand what is difficult for your son, but don't diminish his worries. If she says math is impossible, don't tell her why it isn't. Tell her yes, it is very difficult. Then see if there is a way to help her understand what's bothering her without shoving your solutions down her throat.

As often as possible, be there for your child. Be interested. Admit when you don't have the answers, but be willing to research the problem with him. Let him know that his school day and work is a priority for you, too.

School is important and so are our children. Listening to children is the most important message and help we can give. If we have expectations that our children will do well, chances are, they will.

So relax. Then our children will, too.

Getting straight about its and it's, which and that, and so and so on

By Perry Colmore Catlin

Can I tell you something? If you want to write about Bob's wife, who is Mary, you're going to have to use a comma.

Here's the deal. If you write Bob's wife Mary, the idea is that he also has a wife named Martha, for example, or maybe one named Rachael. And there might be one called Susan, too, if you leave out that comma.

Put it this way. If you write about Ellen's daughter Alice, then she must have other daughters. But if you write Ellen's daughter, Alice, the idea is that Alice is her only daughter.

Totally confused? I assume so, because what comes to the Townsman in the mail shows that.

Here's why. In this country, you're supposed to have one husband, or one wife (at a time, that is). So if you write Bob's wife, and then name her, you need the comma because Mary is an independent clause there. The sentence would make sense without the wife's name: Bob's wife is in China. But you would write: Bob's wife, Mary, is in China. Or read it this way: Bob's wife, who is called Mary, is in China.

Get it?

While we're on the subject, could I remind all of us that its and it's are two entirely different words.

It's means it is. It's is a contraction. The apostrophe in the contraction is used to indicate the letter "i" that is missing in the understood word is. Its is the possessive form of the neuter pronoun. The paper changed its deadline.

At the risk of sounding like a know-it-all, and I know I'm not because you, dear readers let me know when I don't (you know, do not), I will now try to tell you the difference between which and that.

A rule of thumb that I share with reporters is use that when the information is essential to the sentence and use which when there are commas in the sentence. Use which when that information can be lifted right out of the sentence (non-essential).

The dog that is running toward the house is the one I mean.

The dog, which needs a bath, hasn't been fed today.

And speaking of the dog, did you know that an animal is usually a that, when a person is a who? The dog that is running down the street; not the dog who is running down the street.

While we're on the subject, a board or a committee is an it. The committee runs the show. It has three members.

I think I'm pushing my luck, but did you know that over refers to place or location and more than, to numbers. She has more than 15 years of experience. We can see the moon shining over the garage.

Well, that's that, and now it's off my back, which has been heavy with its burden.

Agrees about Shawsheen Plaza

Editor, Townsman:

I am in total agreement with Ann Johnston's letter with regard to the condition of Shawsheen Plaza ("Shawsheen Plaza is an eyesore," page 34, Aug. 27). I have tried to get something done by writing to different people but no one seems to care.

The bridge over the Shawsheen River on North Main Street is another eyesore. The weeds are over five feet tall. Where is the civic pride of the people of Andover?

Did you happen to see News at Ten on Boston's Channel 56 Wednesday night? A group of neighborhood children were filmed loading the donations we received into station wagons for transport to the Salvation Army in Lawrence. The reporter interviewed Julie Viola, 12, a seventh-grader at Doherty, and Keith Wetterskog, 6, and my daughter, Emma, 5, both at Bancroft, in addition to myself (my age shall remain a secret).

The story included a clip from President Bush's speech Tuesday night and made the point that this group of Andover children had organized a relief effort five days before his televised plea to the nation for community aid. I echo this pride in the children. I acted only as supervisor while Julie, Emma, along with Jill Cunningham, 12, Kaitlin Dargan, 12, and Josh Pisco, 8, did all the work.

The rest of the Johnson Acres community of children should also be praised for their involvement. Thirty-five kids, ranging in age from 3 to 12, decorated wagons, bikes and even a baby carriage with balloons and streamers and joined in the parade on Monday afternoon. The blue Andover recycle bins were tied on top of the wagons to double their capacity; you could say the recycle bins were recycled. The excitement and enthusiasm were contagious. Parents and other residents joined the parade or watched as the kids collected 75 bags and boxes full of everything from food, clothing, blankets, sheets, sleeping bags, paper goods, toys, books, tools, even a handful of new toothbrushes and a globe. The most ironic gift – half a dozen rolls of wallpaper. The collection filled two station wagons to bursting and was due to be delivered by Salvation Army truck to southern Florida on Thursday, the third.

So many times young people are portrayed as self-centered and irresponsible. This group of kids from Andover has shown that, with imagination, enthusiasm, persistence and hard work, young people can make a difference. Perhaps the spotlight thrown on their effort by the Townsman and Channel 56 will inspire other groups in Andover and in the Boston area to organize relief drives. And perhaps a more enduring message can be taken to heart: kids care and given chance, kids can help.

COOKING

By Maria Moskos

Summer's end is near and it's time to wind down before cool weather sets in with its heartier menus. Also, school is opening, which means a more regimented schedule for family members.

To minimize time spent in the kitchen during these last few weeks of summer, I have devised some quick summer recipes suitable for cooks with specific needs. Whether you're a working young adult who likes to entertain but has limited preparation time, a teen-ager who has to prepare some of his/her own meals, a dieter who nibbles unless meals can be prepared quickly and easily, a man who likes to barbecue but doesn't like complicated "prep" work, a mom on the go who needs to cook for her family or a single senior on a limited food budget, I'm sure you'll find a recipe to suit you.

When dad's the chef:

Russian London broil

2 large London broil steaks (about 1 3/4 lbs. each)

1 8-oz. bottle Wish Bone Russian dressing (red in color)

Marinate steaks in Russian dressing for about two hours at room temperature or overnight in the refrigerator. Place on hot charcoals and grill to desired doneness, basting with the dressing and turning once. Serves four.

When a teen-ager cooks own meal:

Cheese and tomato corn tortilla

1 pkg. corn tortilla (6 inches in diameter)
2 thin slices red onion
1 plum tomato, thinly sliced
1 scallion, cleaned and minced
2 slices cheddar cheese
Pinch of oregano and black pepper

Line cookie sheet with aluminum foil. Place tortilla on sheet. Cover tortilla with onion, tomatoes, scallions and cheese. Sprinkle with oregano and pepper and bake in 400-degree oven 10 to 12 minutes. Eat while

Building a real community theater in N. Andover

By Mary Katis

Veteran's Auditorium at North Andover Middle School has had 100 lights replaced and loose seats bolted down. This attention to the 1950 auditorium has been generated by Bob Carberry, 212 French Farm Road, who formed the North Andover Committee for Performing Arts.

The committee plans to renovate the Middle School auditorium for community use. Mr. Carberry has the support of town officials, the School Committee and administrators.

"The Committee for Performing Arts is not a community theater group, but a non-profit group that plans to raise money through entertainment, to provide volunteers to crew productions, to use ticket money for the maintenance of the auditorium and for future community needs," said Mr. Carberry.

The committee members are John Willis Jr., Grace Ann Remmes, Jane O'Donnell, Ann Brussard, Diane Smart, Al and Kathy Manzi, Beverly Rogato, Pat Davison, Mel Orlando, Stephanie Dolloff and Bob Carberry, chairman. They hope to create a flagship that will attract professional entertainers and Boston schools such as Emerson, Berklee School of Music, Boston University and the New England Conservatory of Music to stage performances at the Middle School Auditorium.

"The Collins Center in Andover is in limbo with 1,250 seats," said Mr. Carberry.

According to Mr. Carberry, Andover's Collins Center is too large for community use and too small to bring professional shows because the tickets would be too expensive with the limited seating capacity. The tickets for North Andover shows can be kept at $10 because the shows can be staged without a high-priced director or crew; costumes would be provided by the entertainer; and local talent would not require traveling costs.

Once the North Andover school's auditorium is renovated, the revenue from staged performances could be used for other non-profit organizations in town. There are about 30 or 35 non-profit organizations in North Andover and any one of these groups could sell tickets to raise funds for their organization, Mr. Carberry said.

A graduate of Boston College with a degree in education, Mr. Carberry has been involved with bands for a long time. He plays the piano, organ, guitar and bagpipes. He is a member and former music director of the Clan McPherson Pipe and Drum. His three daughters, Karen, 10 years; Kelli, 8; and Kristina, 4, think everyone likes to perform. His wife, Nancy, who owns and operates the Nancy Chippendale School of Dance, used the Collins Center for recitals for the last nine years.

Bob Carberry sits on the side of a chair in the North Andover Middle School auditorium.

Mr. Carberry's experiences with these recitals gave him on-the-job training for the auditorium project, he said. The Collins Center sent him proposal forms for an outline of reorganization and future management of their facility but Mr. Carberry doesn't plan to get involved with the Collins Center now.

"I just started the North Andover Committee for Performing Arts and plan to see this project through," he said. "The auditorium needs to be done and I can do it."

Broadway 101, the first Performing Arts show, was staged in June at the Middle School auditorium. The house was almost full. Tony Pace, a Boston-based entertainer, and Debbie Salois, a local singer and 1981 Miss Massachusetts, were so well received in Broadway 101 that a repeat show is planned for November.

A Las Vegas show with singing and dancing is scheduled for Oct. 9. A Christmas show in December will feature local chorus groups and singalongs.

The Committee for Performing Arts is looking for volunteers to repair and run the auditorium. The committee seeks community support to attend the shows, from seniors to young children. The project is not political or a school project or a business. The community theater will benefit all residents, Mr. Carberry said.

Rick Gorman, director of Youth Services in North Andover, encouraged his kids at the youth center to act as crew for the Broadway 101 production. They learned about theater arts and how to stage a play. Stage experiences could lead to a trade for any of the young men and women who get involved in these productions, Mr. Carberry and Mr. Gorman believe.

"Battle of the Bands could be at the Middle School auditorium and teenagers could learn how to take care of a facility like this," said Mr. Carberry. "People who come to the shows could have a dinner and show night, which would help local restaurants."

The spirit of people helping people lead Mr. Carberry to order a special $500 ladder from Gorham Hardware, in North Andover. The ladder is used for the stage riggings, to replace overhead stage lights and to replace stage curtains and other needs.

A new 16-foot by 40-foot Mylar curtain, a split curtain that attracts light to create a sparkle effect, will be used in the October performance. Other improvements that the committee has approved are a black apron to skirt the stage, traverse rods for stage curtains that will allow more scenery changes, an improved sound system, and a cycoramo, which is a lighting instrument that can project a light onto the curtain or project a logo.

Plans to paint the orchestra floor and change the stage flooring to a dark color, which is necessary for depth perception and to allow the stage to frame the performer, are being considered. Mr. Carberry also hopes to install indirect lighting in the auditorium and to build a wiring trough to run cables to the back of the theater where a sound box could be used to direct the sounds on stage.

The School Committee has promised that locks will secure the auditorium. Once the locks are in place, the lighting equipment can be set up.

"The acoustics are good but if some of the walls were carpeted the sound would be even better," said Mr. Carberry. "We plan to fix as we go."

PLEASE !

"A few weeks ago I saw a little girl struck by a car as she tried to cross the street. I saw a father race toward her and hold her to him as she struggled in the agony of death. I saw the plans he had made for her crumble, and I saw the look of despair that came over his face I could offer only a prayer that such a thing might never happen again. Today my daughter, who is six years old, started off to school. Her cocker spaniel, whose name is "Scoot", watched her leave and whined his belief in the folly of education.

Tonight we talked about school. She told me about the girl who sits in front of her, a girl with yellow curls, and about the boy across the aisle that makes faces; about the teacher who has eyes in the back of her head; about the trees in the schoolyard, and the big girl who does not believe in Santa Claus.

We talked about a lot of things, some important , some unimportant.

Now, as this is being written, she is sound asleep with her dog "Patty" in her arms.

When her doll gets broken, or her finger gets cut, or her head gets bumped, I can fix them . But when she starts to cross the street, then Mr. Driver, she is in your hands.

Much as I wish I could, it's not possible for me to be with her all the time. I have to work and pay for her home, her clothes and her education".

"So as you drive, please help me to look out for her. Please drive carefully. Please drive slowly past schools and at intersections. And please remember that sometimes children run from behind parked cars".

"Please don't run over my little girl"

TO THE CITIZENS OF ANDOVER:

All the talk about good government, reform, constructive political action is simply "talk"...unless we vote.

All the billboards, bumper stickers, meetings attended, phone calls made or received are simply election baggage...unless we vote.

All Andover citizens have a special reason for voting this year. They can VOTE FOR JOHN O'BRIEN FOR STATE SENATOR and launch an able young man on a public service career.

Andover resident, Andover family, Andover Planning Board chairman, John O'Brien gives as a unique opportunity for Andover representation in state government...if we go to the polls on Sept. 15 and vote.

I was born and educated in Andover. Then came World War II and four years in the Marine Corps. From those years came an interest in government, good government. So my first job in 1946 was in California politics. That interest has never left and ever since I have voted and worked for both Republican and Democratic candidates on national, local and state levels.

In this current era, so chock full of cynicism and slanderous negative campaigning, it is good for soul and body to see a truly fine, clear-visioned, intelligent young man from Andover running for state senator.

But, he can win and represent us only if all Andover voters actually vote for John O'Brien for state senator in the primary on Tuesday, Sept. 15, and then in the general election in November.

AHS boys' soccer coach says competition is tougher this year

By Rick Harrison

It's one of those good news-bad news situations for the 1992 Andover High boys' varsity soccer team.

The good news is veteran Coach Dave Amundsen feels the Golden Warriors are stronger than they were last year. The bad news is the rest of the league is also better.

"We should be in the fight for the (MVC Large School Division) championship," noted Amundsen, "but the competition is going to be more difficult than it was last year."

Andover, which has qualified for 14 Eastern Mass. Tournaments in Amundsen's first 17 seasons and won eight league titles during one nine-year stretch in the 1980's, finished third in the division last year with a 9-5-4 league record.

AHS was in the thick of the pennant race until consecutive late-season one-goal losses to Wilmington, league champ Lowell and Tewksbury took the locals out of contention.

They finished the regular season with a big 4-1 win over Billerica, then edged Concord-Carlisle (2-1 in overtime) in the opening round of the tournament before being ousted by Masconomet Regional (also 2-1 in overtime).

Key graduates from the 1991 crew (10-6-4 overall) are Brian Jones, now attending Providence College, Chris Zappala (Northeastern), second leading scorer Chris Pothier, Minh Nguyen (Wheaton), Mark Baker (UHartford), Tim Maracle (Northeastern) and Lee Farr.

Amundsen launched his 18th season by greeting 60 candidates at the opening of double sessions workouts last week.

Eight returning starters

Leading the way is a nucleus of eight returning starters, including veteran senior goaltender Matt Reghitto and top scorer Quang Nguyen.

Reghitto missed the first six games last year after suffering a pulled hamstring injury, with Tim Plankey stepping in admirably during his absence. Upon his return Reghitto fired off three consecutive shutouts and finished the season with five whitewashes.

Junior forward Nguyen scored nine goals and passed out three assists for a team that struggled offensively, scoring only 40 goals in 20 games (2.0 average).

Other returning starters are senior sweeper Keith Selvitelli (2-3-5 last year), senior midfielders John Martin (4-3-7) and Kevin Nusky (0-2-2), senior defenders Mike O'Sullivan (1-1-2) and John Desmond, and junior forward Lyle Morgan (4-2-6).

Senior midfielder/defender Rhett Bachner also started several games late in the season.

Desmond has been sidelined by mononucleosis and his return is on a week-to-week basis.

Returning lettermen who saw some playing time last fall are senior forward Brian Croteau, who missed part of the year with injuries, and junior backup goaltender Chris Sintros.

Elevated from the successful junior varsity squad are senior defender Eric Fox and senior forwards Andy Brown, Peter Murphy, Drew Leinson and Steve Kulcsar.

Senior forward Josh Nelkin has returned from Governor Dummer Academy, Dave Poulo is a transfer from St. John's Prep in Danvers, and senior midfielder/forward Raul Azner is an AFS student from Spain.

"We should be strong," said Coach Amundsen, who has guided Andover teams to more than 200 victories. "We have a senior lineup of committed soccer players and athletes. We're well-balanced across the field, and we should be more productive offensively this year."

Beat alumni

The varsity scored a rare 2-1 victory over a group of graduates in the annual Alumni Game last week, and other scrimmage games have been lined up with Reading, Wakefield, Masconomet and North Andover.

Coach Amundsen sees few weak links in the Merrimack Valley Conference chain, pointing to defending champ Lowell, traditional powers Chelmsford and Billerica, Small School champ Tewksbury and Wilmington as solid rivals.

Wilmington has been a jinx team for AHS over the years, including last season when the Wildcats posted 4-1 and 3-1 victories.

Mike Wartman and Charlie Labelle return as junior varsity and freshman coach respectively.

The Andover boys open their 1992 MVC regular season next Tuesday night at Chelmsford, meet Methuen in the home opener next Thursday night at Lovely Field (7 p.m.), and travel to Dracut on Saturday, Sept. 19 for a 10 a.m. contest.

Girls' volleyball team seeks 100th win

The Andover High girls' varsity volleyball team has qualified for the State Tournament every year since 1988, winning an average of 70 per cent of its matches, and this fall co-head coaches Art Iworsley and George Sullivan will be chasing their milestone 100th victory.

Returning captain and 1991 All-Conference player Kerry Hagerty, along with seniors Julie Doherty, Linda Hsu, Erinne Sullivan, Sarah Schmuhl, Joanna Moynihan, Melissa Minot, Lisa Perdigao, Sarah Tully and Holly Wright, will lead the Lady Warriors this season.

Other returning players include Merrimack Valley Conference All-Star Carrie Green, along with Ann Marie Hussey, Jen Durbin, Amy Fenton and Liz Woods who helped spark the junior varsity to a superb 18-2 record last fall.

Gone through graduation from last year's 16-4 AHS net squad, which finished second in the MVC Large School Division, are seven seniors: Alexis Campbell, Cara Conserva, All-Conference selection Lea Conserva, Stephanie Crane, Lee Hendricks, All-Conference pick Stephanie Kupa and Meghan Mueller

'92 golf team has its work cut out for it just to equal last year's accomplishments

By Rick Harrison

A tough act to follow.

The 1992 Andover High golf team would almost have to be perfect to surpass the record-setting accomplishments of last year's squad.

The '91 Golden Warriors put together the most successful split season in AHS links history, tying Chelmsford for the Merrimack Valley Conference Large School title with a 13-1-1 record.

The fall campaign was capped by a first place finish in the Northeast Area Division 1 Qualifying Round, and was followed last June by an impressive third place in the All-State Division 1 Championship.

Andover, which has won or shared five league titles and qualified for the tourney 14 times under current Coach Bob Lawson, finished third once before in Division 2.

Gone from last year's team is the 1-2 punch of Jim Ofria and Matt Harris, who alternated in the top two spots and are currently trying out as freshman for their respective Bucknell and University of Massachusetts-Lowell teams.

Both Ofria and Harris also qualified for the State Individual Championships last spring, but chose not to go because of a conflict with the senior class trip.

Dan Hinchey (UMass-Amherst) is the third top graduate from the title team, while others who contributed were Rich Yost, Paul Bernardin, Ted Ratyna, John Gabriel and Jesse Ciccione.

"It's going to be tough to equal last year," admitted Coach Lawson, who marks a milestone silver anniversary (25th year) at the AHS helm. "But I think we have a very, very talented group of young players.

"It's the best ninth grade talent I've ever coached. They've all had a lot of playing experience (in tournaments like the Junior Rogers and CYO), the attitude is excellent and it's a fun group.

"Of course, I don't know what the other teams have or how our kids will react under fire in a nine-hole high school varsity match. But I believe we'll surprise people and I'm looking forward to the season," added Lawson.

Hesenius, LeBreck return

Leading the turnout of 19 candidates are senior Co-Captain Justin Hesenius and junior Co-Captain Greg LeBreck.

Both played anywhere from No. 3 to No. 5 in last year's lineup, LeBreck finishing with a 10-4

Girls' soccer team feels it has something to prove this year

By Rick Harrison

Hard to believe, but finishing one point out of first place in the league and losing in the opening round of the Eastern Mass. Tournament is considered an "off year" if you're the Andover High girls' soccer team.

Last year Coach Dick Loschi's Lady Warriors were 8-1-3 in the Merrimack Valley Conference, one point behind Billerica which ended Andover's five-year stranglehold on the championship.

They were also 10-5-4 overall, with non-league losses to Foxboro, Wellesley and North Andover, and a 2-0 setback to Framingham in the tourney opener.

"The girls feel they have something to prove this year," said Loschi. "The returning veterans were not pleased to lose the league title, and they're looking to rebound and return to the top."

The 3-1 loss to Billerica was only Andover's third in six years of MVC play, all to Billerica, and despite the "off year" Loschi still launches his eighth campaign with a spectacular 106-22-15 record over the last seven seasons.

There were three key graduates in Amy Heseltine, Nicole Angelos and Julie Connor.

All-Scholastic standout Heseltine is continuing her success at Providence College, stepping in as a freshman starter at sweeper for the varsity.

Angelos, who scored 10 goals in the first four games last fall before suffering a tragic injury (broken leg) that sidelined her the remainder of the school year, is getting everything back together as a post-graduate at Northfield-Mt. Hermon.

The AHS offense was never the same after Angelos's injury, scoring 20 goals in four games with her but only 25 in the next 15 games.

The third starter, midfielder Julie Connor, is attending the University of Indiana. She was second on the team in assists last fall with six.

Record turnout

Loschi and assistants Karl Lippmann (JV) and record in head-to-head matches and Hesenius chalking up eight individual wins.

Other varsity veterans, who saw some playing time last fall, are junior Mike Mazza and sophomore Dan Hansberry.

Additional juniors on the squad are Mark Escott and Brian Hussey, while the outstanding group of 9th and 10th graders includes freshmen Dave Shaffer, Jeff Mazza, Jeff Shea and sophomores Mike Trombly, Nate Roberts and C.J. Dowd.

Coach Lawson points to defending co-champ Chelmsford, which handed the Warriors their lone loss last year, and traditional power Haverhill as the other Large School challengers. Methuen and Tewksbury should be strong in the Samll School Division.

Andover will again play its home matches at Indian Ridge Country Club.

The 1992 season opens next Tuesday afternoon with a home match at IRCC against Wilmington, to be followed by consecutive road matches Wednesday at archrival Chelmsford (Apple Country Club) and Friday at Lowell (Mt. Pleasant Golf Club).

The Merrimack Valley Conference Individual Championships are scheduled for Oct. 20.

Top runners return to AHS cross country teams

By Rick Harrison

With most of the top runners back from last year's very successful teams, Andover High boys' and girls' cross country Coach Leo Lafond is quietly optimistic that the 1992 Golden Warriors will remain in the Merrimack Valley Conference and Eastern Massachusetts upper echelon.

The boys are coming off a 6-4-0 season, one in which they captured six of their first seven meets before finishing with consecutive losses to division powers Lowell, Chelmsford and Tewksbury.

Andover was also 14th in a field of 35 schools at the EMass. Class B Meet.

The girls ended up 6-4-0 as well, winning five of their first seven and suffering their only blowout loss early in the season to Haverhill.

The Lady Warriors then placed fifth in the Eastern Mass. Class B Meet, qualifying for the All-State Championships where they finished 16th.

"We have a lot of veteran talent on both teams, and excellent depth on the boys' side," said Coach Lafond, who begins his fifth season at the harrier helm.

Andover girls

The Lady Warriors return their top four runners from last year's record-setting squad, but lost some depth with the graduation of Heather McNemar, Stephanie Carroll (both attending Dartmouth) and Jen Ashlock.

Senior Tri-Captain Ellen Sullivan was Andover's No. 1 last fall, capping the season by finishing 11th in the Class Meet and 44th in the All-States.

Other members of AHS' top four are senior Tri-Captains Heather Holmander, Amanda Holmes and junior Amanda Grasso.

Grasso was 29th in Class B and 84th at the All-State, Holmes 34th Class B and 89th All-State, and Holmander 51st Class B and 109th All-State.

Completing the list of varsity veterans are senior Diane Ellsworth, juniors Candace Kim and Mardhavi Reddy, and sophomore Jessica Banos.

Lafond greeted 18 girls at the first practice, but expected that number to grow after school started early this week.

"We may have a couple outstanding athletes coming over from other sports, but until they actually show up I can't be sure or mention any names," noted Lafond.

Lafond expects Tewksbury, Billerica and possibly Haverhill to be strong once again on the girls' side of the league.

Merrimack College appoints Barry Rosen as head varsity baseball coach

Barry Rosen of Andover, who for the past 17 years served as head varsity baseball coach at Winthrop High, has been appointed to the same job at Merrimack College.

Rosen replaces Ed Morrison, who resigned the Warriors' post last spring after directing the MC fortunes for nine years.

Rosen, a 1972 graduate of the University of Massachusetts-Amherst, led Winthrop to a pair of Northeastern Conference championships in 1987 and 1992. He also coached Winthrop to the 1981 Massachusetts State Division 2 title and recorded 174 victories during his tenure.

Rosen has also served as an assistant football coach at Winthrop the past 20 years.

He began his coaching career as an assistant junior varsity baseball coach at UMass-Amherst in 1971, and was the freshman baseball coach at his alma mater in 1971 and '72.

"This is a great opportunity," said Rosen. "Coaching at the collegiate level is a chance for self-improvement and I can't let that chance go by.

"Ed Morrison started a great tradition of winning baseball at Merrimack, one which I hope to enhance and expand. My goals are to win the Northeast-10 Conference championship and continue the emphasis on academic excellence which players like (Andover's) David Miles have established."

Miles, who played his high school baseball at Central Catholic and was 6-2 for Merrimack last spring, earned Academic All-America status in 1992.

Rosen resides in Andover with his wife, Carol, and their seven-year-old daughter Lindsay.

Girls' soccer team feels it has something to prove

Kathy McDermott (freshmen) were nearly overwhelmed when 86 candidates showed up for the opening day of practice last week.

"It's about 25 more than we usually have," said Loschi, who kept 43 on the varsity and junior varsity, 26 freshmen and had to cut only 17.

The Lady Warriors have nine returning starters, including senior midfielder and Captain Rachel Roberts, senior midfielder and Assistant Captain Hilary Recesso, senior forward and Assistant Captain Lindsey Sweeney, senior midfielder Octavia Hollander and senior defenders Marcia Gemmell, Cara Morrison, Colleen Murnane and Allysa Sonntag.

Both goaltenders are also back, senior Beth Everett and sophomore Kim Kelley splitting the duties almost 50-50 last fall.

Additional returning lettermen are senior forwards Becky Levine, Michelle Morey, Maureen Wade and Tara Griffin.

Griffin is expected to be sidelined another 7-10 days while awaiting a brace to cover a knee injury suffered last spring and re-habbed all summer.

New to the varsity this year are senior defender Kara O'Handley, who missed last year with an injury, junior midfielder Amy Pierro and sophomore defender Amy Baker.

They have been elevated from the highly-successful junior varsity (16-1-1 record) and freshman (9-1-2) teams.

Three freshmen

Also, for the first time in his eight seasons, Loschi is keeping three freshman prospects on the varsity. The trio of talented ninth graders consists of forward Jenn Munroe, midfielder Vanessa Blank and defender Sue Cookson.

"Experience will definitely be a factor for us," said Loschi. "We have a lot of starters back and they know the routine.

"Our strength lies in the defense and our depth at midfield. Both keepers are very capable. We can't replace Angelos at forward, but from what I've seen so far Munroe, Levine and Morey look like they have the potential to be consistent scorers."

Despite playing only four games Angelos led the AHS scoring parade last fall with 10 goals and one assist. Heseltine was tied in total points with 4-7-11.

Recesso is the top returing goalscorer with five last season while Sweeney, Morey and Wade netted four each. Levine had three.

Andover whipped Pentucket Regional 4-2 in a scrimmage last week, and was impressive in a 1-0 practice game loss to traditional Division 1 power Winchester on Labor Day morning.

"We weren't in awe of them (Winchester) as we have been at times in the past," said Loschi (Winchester has won three State titles in recent years).

Today the Lady Warriors scrimmage Masconomet Regional and Saturday morning participate in a Jamboree at Newton.

The regular season opens next Monday night under the lights at Chelmsford (7 p.m.), and an early-season showdown with archrival Billerica follows Friday afternoon at Billerica.

The home opener is Saturday, Sept. 19 against Dracut (10 a.m.).

Another rugged non-league schedule includes games against Bishop Fenwick (home, Sept. 23), Wellesley (home, Oct. 3 at 7 p.m.), Arlington (away, Oct. 7), Masconomet Regional (home, Oct. 15 at 7 p.m.), Peabody (home, Oct. 19) and North Andover (home, Oct. 30 at 7 p.m.).

Six of the first nine games are on the road and seven of the last nine, including the final four, are at home.

Top AHS runners return

The MVC season opens with a tri-meet next Wednesday afternoon, Andover and Haverhill traveling to Dracut. The home opener is the following Wednesday, Sept. 23, against Chelmsford.

The only non-league meet is scheduled for Saturday, Oct. 17 against crosstown rival Phillips Academy (1 p.m. at PA).

Andover boys

The Golden Warrior boys are hoping to improve upon last year's third place finish in the Merrimack Valley Conference Small School Division.

They should find out quickly where they stand, facing the iron early in the schedule. Dracut, Chelmsford, Lowell and Tewksbury, the four schools that beat AHS last fall, are all in the first half of the schedule.

Andover graduated three seniors, with Ryan Morgan the biggest loss. He was one of the Warriors' top two finishers in most dual meets, and the second AHS runner across in the Class B Meet (56th overall).

Ironically Morgan is now a post graduate at Phillips Academy, and will be running against his former teammates in a non-league dual on Saturday, Oct. 17 at PA (1 p.m.).

Also gone are Jeremy Roux (UVermont) and Larry Gibson (Babson).

Top returning veterans among the 45 candidates are senior Quad-Captains Brian Twomey and Erik Dahlstrand.

Twomey shared top billing with Morgan during last year's dual meet season, and placed 87th in the Class B Meet, while Dahlstrand finished first for Andover and 53rd overall at the Class B Meet.

Twomey underwent a pair of operations this summer and is still rounding into top shape.

Other senior Quad-Captains are Ben Moyer and Dave Gardner, while returning lettermen include seniors Todd Taylor, Dan Wrigley, John Cirella, juniors Nick Zammuto, Max Dawson, J.J. McCormick and Kevin Sharkey, sophomores Mark Adams and Tim Sullivan.

New to the team this year are sophomore Chad Collins, who scored in several dual meet distance races for the varsity track team last spring, and freshman prospect Charlie Russo.

Lafond noted that Todd Taylor has been most impressive during the pre-season.

There are few soft spots on the boys' schedule with Chelmsford, Dracut, Tewksbury, Lowell and possibly Central Catholic all strong.

Russ Wrigley returns as the Warriors' assistant coach.

Sons of Italy holds five mile road race to benefit Big Brothers/Big Sisters

The Lawrence Lodge #902 Sons of Italy will conduct its third annual Five Mile Road Race and Five Mile Walk Saturday, Sept. 26. The race will begin at 10 a.m. and the walk at 9 a.m., both starting at the lodge at 155 Marston St. in Lawrence, adjacent to Route 495.

The proceeds will benefit the Big Brothers/Big Sisters organization of Greater Lawrence. Entry fees are $7 for the race and $2 for the walk with applications submitted before Sept. 14. Fees for registering later or on the day of the race will be $9 for the race and $3 for the walk. The application contains a form for those who wish to obtain pledges that will benefit Big Brothers/Big Sisters.

The race, having a certified course, will involve six age categories for men and women.

Trophies will be awarded to the top three finishers of the race and the first three finalists in each age category will receive awards as well. The first 150 race registrants will receive a T-shirt. The following prizes will be awarded to all racers and walkers who have submitted their pledges before the race: $20 or more, a hat; $30 or more, a T-shirt; $40 or more, a sweat shirt. All tax deductible donations should be made payable to the Lawrence Sons of Italy.

Applications may be picked up at the Lawrence Lodge 902.

ANDOVER WATER DEPARTMENT PUBLIC NOTICE

The Massachusetts Department of Environmental Protection (D.E.P.) has determined that the Andover Water Department which serves approximately 33,000 persons in the towns of Andover, North Reading and Tewksbury meets the filtration requirements of the Safe Drinking Water Treatment Act (SDWA) Surface Water Treatment Rule (SWTR) at Haggets Pond, the public water supply surface source.

The determination of compliance with the Federal Safe Drinking Water Act by the D.E.P. was based on information provided by the Andover Water Department from June 1990 to July 1992 demonstrating a properly operated water treatment process which reliably achieved inactivation of Giardia Lamblia cysts, and/or inactivation of viruses, as required by criteria published at 310 CMR 22.20A.

The Andover Water Department, as well as any person or persons who are currently served by the Andover Water Supply system may request a review of the Department determination, at a public hearing, by submitting a written request to the Regional Director, Department of Environmental Protection, 10 Commerce Way, Woburn, Massachusetts 01801 by September 25, 1992. For additional information concerning this notice please call Robert E. McQuade, P.E., Director of Public Works, 397 Lowell Street, Andover, 475-6980.

We Guarantee You The Lower Rate

When refinancing or buying a home,
Andover Bank's Rate Lock/Re-Lock Option lets you lock in a rate at application for as long as 60 days with no points paid at the time of application. If rates decrease, you can take advantage of the lower rate (one time only) up to five business days prior to closing. Best of all, if rates should increase, Andover Bank guarantees the rate won't go above the rate offered when you applied.

So don't delay your application process simply because you think rates may go down. Apply now and our Rate Lock/Re-Lock option will provide you with the guarantee of a lower rate.

tive, and to present new ideas on Beacon Hill," he said.

He supports term limitation, Welfare reform and reinstatement of the death penalty, and wants to work for economic development.

"The Senate must regain public trust through providing leadership in economic development, tough crime policies, Welfare reform and term limitation," he said.

Mr. McLaughlin proposes to create enterprise zones and "to build confidence in our communities through increased state aid for education and public safety."

"Couple this with an expansion of our lottery to pay for these increases, instead of tax increases, and businesses will return to Massachusetts and provide jobs," he said.

Mr. McLaughlin is pro-choice.

"(Health care) should be handled on the national level," he said.

About state aid, he said, "A definite percentage of state revenues should be returned each year."

Asked about gun control, he said, "I would judge each bill dealing with weapons on its merit," he said.

Mr. McLaughlin describes himself as a "moderate."

He called Sen. McGovern an "outstanding legislator."

Asked about Gov. Weld, he said, "Gov. Weld and I agree on some issues and disagree on others."

School opens

12th-graders.

Paula Eichner transferred from the WMS English department and Judy Johnson from the WMS counseling department. Dolores Dunning transferred to AHS from the elementary school art department and Howard Tozier joins the AHS physical education staff from DMS.

The four new staff members to the system are math teacher Ron Francis, heath teacher Betsy Holden, special education teacher Karen Parker and counselor Tim Walker.

Two new programs are a computer-aided drafting class and an eleventh-grade pilot English and social studies program.

The required ninth-grade technological tools class will be streamlined, said Principal Tim Thomas, so freshmen will have more scheduling freedom to take other electives as well as free up computers for upper classman.

Mr. Thomas said the school will continue to develop programs and events that heighten students' awareness of and celebrate the diversity of the school population. He is looking for student and parent volunteers to work with the school to develop a vision statement on the school's academic and extracurricular priorities.

Avoid an IRS penalty

The third payment of estimated federal income tax for 1992 individual income is due Tuesday, Sept. 15.

Those who expect to owe $500 or more in tax this year, and expect that their annual withholding will be less than 90 percent of the tax shown on their 1992 return, probably need to make an estimated federal tax payment.

Clothes store to open here

By Don Staruk

Paradox, a men's and women's clothing, accessories and gifts store, may open soon in the former CVS pharmacy location at 54 Main Street.

John V. and Cynthia MacEachern, of Topsfield, owners of the new store, have had their proposal to sublease the space accepted by CVS, which still has more than three years remaining of a five-year lease on the site. The proposal has also been accepted with conditions by Donald Richmond, owner of Richmond Properties, which owns the building.

"I gave my consent with conditions as far as renovations go," Mr. Richmond said Tuesday.

He is negotiating with CVS on a "few details" on the renovations in the proposal, but Mr. Richmond said there is "no reason why it should not go through."

Mr. Richmond did not have any more details on the proposed store, but said Mr. MacEachern has experience in the Hoffman clothing store chain. Hoffman offers a moderate-priced line of clothing.

The former CVS space has been vacant since the pharmacy moved to the Barcelos building, at 68 Main St., last year.

The clothing store would not represent a change of use, since the previous and proposed stores would be retail use, and no Planning Board approval or additional parking would be required, according to Laura Hill, town planner. Ms. Hill drafted the new zoning amendments approved at Town Meeting last April, which were designed to make it easier for businesses to locate and relocate in the downtown.

The guide is a five-part planning series, including sections on: getting started, controlling cash flow, planning for a college education, planning for retirement and planning an estate.

The guide has been designed to help the average person focus on financial goals and develop sensible investment strategies to meet them. It provides worksheets to help investors determine their net worth.

The college education and retirement sections of the guide explain how to estimate future costs and the amount of savings needed to cover these expenses. There's also a special worksheet to analyze spending habits.

"This new guide gives people a starting point for making well-informed decisions concerning their finances," said Jon S. Fossel, president and CEO of Oppenheimer.

"Baby boomers are now making the transition from spending to saving. The five areas covered in this guide are topics this group is most concerned about."

Quality service determines success of mortgage lenders

By Charles Nilsen

America is increasingly becoming a service-based economy. As the industrial base evolves and businesses continue to move operations to countries with lower labor costs or less regulation, America's economic health and place in the world economy relies more heavily on the expertise of its people to provide services.

The financial services industry represents one of the largest players in this movement and, in particular, the mortgage lending industry.

The implications of the word "service" go beyond providing an intangible good. How that service is provided in terms of quality, timeliness, appropriateness and cost are very important to the consumer but, except for cost, aren't measured in the gross national product.

It's these intangibles that deserve a closer look. Nowhere is it more appropriate or timely than in residential mortgage lending.

Home ownership is viewed as one of the most sacred and important rights by many Americans in this "land of opportunity."

The burgeoning mortgage industry has done a great deal to foster this attitude by making home mortgages easily accessible. More Americans own their homes, per capita, than in any other country.

With the enormous growth in demand for home mortgages and the liquidity of this market provided by government agencies such as the Federal National Mortgage Association (FNMA) and the Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corporation (FHLMC) as well as a host of private investors including pension funds and insurance companies, the supply of mortgage money is plentiful and the number and type of lenders is increasing rapidly. Competition has become fierce among those who provide mortgages to buy or refinance homes.

So what differentiates one mortgage lender from another, besides the interest rate advertised or quoted over the phone?

Assuming all lenders have good intentions, the ability to determine consumer needs and to offer the most appropriate mortgage in a timely and professional manner are just as important as, if not more important than, interest rates.

This distinction is important for anyone considering a new mortgage because there are a number of institutions that offer jumbo mortgages, and among those leaders the interest rates, types of mortgages (fixed vs. adjustable-rate) and requirements may vary widely.

A few of those institutions, however, have positioned themselves as specialized jumbo mortgage lenders that cater exclusively to the unique service needs and expectations of the affluent homeowner.

As with most products or services consumed by an affluent or truly wealthy person, the cost is only one factor considered. The quality of the product or service desired is at least as, if not more, important.

Low interest rates – among the lowest in 20 years – have caused a tremendous surge in the refinancing business.

Coupled with falling home prices, low rates have also created a significant increase in home sales and consequently the demand for purchase mortgages, particularly in New England.

With this sudden activity in the market, many lenders have been operating at or over capacity for some time. As a result, many applicants have experienced a deterioration in service quality. This is evident in the growing number of long application-processing delays and even missed closing dates on purchase and sale agreements.

Most recently, a mortgage lender's ability to meet certain deadlines for a customer has become a critical issue. Borrowers caught in these service delays have often missed the chance to lock in on the lowest interest rates available.

If someone is buying a new home for $500,000 and needs a mortgage of $400,000 in forty-five days to meet contractual obligations, the savings expected from a low-interest mortgage are worthless if the funds are not available to meet the closing date.

For many customers, the unreliable billing procedures of some mortgage servicers has been another frequent frustration.

A common practice among most mortgage lenders is to sell a mortgage and the servicing rights to that mortgage repeatedly over a period of time. Servicing rights include billing and collecting payments, as well as managing escrow accounts that contain reserves, paid monthly by the borrower for taxes and insurance.

Complaints range from the occasional lost bill or check to unpaid real estate taxes or insurance payments. Often, the consumer isn't quite sure whom to call with a question.

Real estate agents and others who advise prospective mortgage customers are beginning to recognize the importance of service quality and are directing their clients to lenders that will deliver in a timely fashion.

From a realtor's perspective, good service is defined as speedy turnaround on buyer pre-qualification and loan commitments, good communication to minimize problems between commitment and closing, convenient closing locations and competent closing attorneys.

For anyone involved in the residential mortgage industry, the ability to deliver quality service will be the key to survival and success. Increasing demand in an improving market has underscored that point. But the level and quality of service will assume increasing importance, not just for lenders, but also for the entire business community, as we move into the 1990s and beyond.

Baystate Financial Services:

Personalized planning to meet financial needs

Successful people – who stand to benefit the most from planning their financial future – usually have the least time to sit down and do it today.

Juggling the daily demands of career, family and involvement in your community can leave precious little time for planning long-range financial goals.

Freeing your business and personal time so you can address more urgent matters is what Baystate Financial Services is all about.

Located at 10 Essex St., Andover, Baystate Financial Services works with individuals and businesses to help them achieve their financial planning objectives.

For businesses, these often include establishing and maintaining group and individual life, health and disability plans, traditional qualified retirement plans (401K, pension, profit-sharing, Keogh or SEP-IRA), and more recent non-qualified retirement plans.

For individuals, the focus of most of the firm's work in Andover, services provided include education planning, life insurance, investment portfolio management, retirement planning and disability income protection planning.

"Baystate Financial Services is New England's oldest and largest full-service financial services firm," said Ronald R. Hill, the managing principal of Baystate's Andover office.

"The firm was founded in Boston in 1901, and since that time has worked hard to meet the wide array of financial needs of individuals and business owners by providing quality financial services," he said.

Mr. Hill said that three topics in particular are especially important: education planning, life insurance and retirement planning.

Education planning

Among the services available for individuals, education planning has a high priority for many Andover/North Andover families. The costs of private secondary and college educations are rising much faster than inflation and planning to meet these needs is a very challenging goal, Mr. Hill said.

"After all, families with annual incomes over $40,000-$50,000 will be unlikely to receive needs-based financial aid in the years ahead."

This fact makes two strategies necessary for families with education funding goals:

1. Be sure to look into all sources of financial aid well in advance of your child's needing them. Every year, many sources of educational financial aid go untapped because of a lack of applicants.

2. Begin appropriate investments today. Time frame until the money will be needed, as well as your own risk aversion, have everything to do with the investments you select.

There are a certain very few historically immutable laws of investing, which have been accurate time and time again over the years. They are far more dependent upon the length of time an appropriate investment is exposed to market forces than on fuzzy notions of market timing.

Oftentimes, the best education planning programs are begun after a family has convinced themselves that funds for the purpose are unavailable, Mr. Hill said.

"By doing a detailed analysis of their monthly budgets and comparing it with their take-home pay, many clients realize either that money has been slipping through their fingers or that some funds could be spent on higher family priorities like education planning."

Life insurance

Life insurance, said Mr. Hill, is everybody's favorite topic.

Within a full financial plan, life insurance can play several roles. While the product can have attractive cash accumulation features, it is most importantly a financial vehicle that helps replace income lost when a family wage-earner dies.

Expert: Planning key in meeting financial needs

Three factors are most important when selecting life insurance:

1. The amount of life insurance, the most important factor.

This can only be determined following objective analysis by a skilled professional, preferably someone who has attained at least one of the professional designations of CLU (chartered life underwriter), ChFC (chartered financial consultant) or CFP (certified financial planner). This figure should never be arrived at in haphazard fashion (example: "You look like a successful person – you ought to have half a million.").

2. The type of life insurance. Whether the client should have term insurance, some form of whole life insurance or a combination of both depends upon many things. This determination should also be reached with a life insurance professional you can trust.

3. The ownership and beneficiary of the life insurance. According to Mr. Hill, this is one of the areas of a life insurance policy that is most often handled incorrectly.

"Many people with whom I meet are not aware of how very important ownership and beneficiary designations and the use of trusts can be in their overall estate planning."

He recommends that those to be insured consult with their insurance adviser, attorney and accountant to make sure these are handled correctly.

Retirement planning

Retirement planning should be of interest to nearly everyone. Calculation of the funds necessary to retire at a good standard of living is often a sobering experience.

The retirement planning process should be begun as early as possible, and the setting of goals and a means to achieve them with your financial adviser a must.

Mr. Hill said that good retirement planning relies on several sources of income at retirement, including company plans, investments, life insurance, real estate, Social Security and others. He also warns that the investments that fund retirement plans can be either too aggressive or too conservative.

"It all depends upon the particular client. If the client has just a short while to go until retirement, or their peace of mind requires them to make only the most conservative investments, or both, then very conservative investments are what they should have."

He points to very low bank CD rates – now around 3 or 4 percent – as having been a great boon to the investment business.

"There are other very safe, secure investments, which offer greatest returns," he said.

On the other hand, Mr. Hill points out that the retirement planning investor under the age of 45 or so will often likely be better served by a more aggressive investment posture, one that includes stocks and bonds.

"If the long-term rate of return does not exceed the inflation rate by at least 2 to 3 percentage points, the client is not being well served.

Mr. Hill and his 85 Baystate Financial colleagues in offices in and around Greater Boston rely on up to 30-40 life insurance companies and 80-1,000 different investment firms to fill the product needs of their clients.

"So, our clients can be sure we are really searching the financial marketplace at all times, in an effort to be of the greatest help to them. We feel we offer the residents of Andover, North Andover and the surrounding towns the best of both worlds: all the advantages of a major metropolitan brokerage, with the most local, individual services possible."

Baystate Financial is committed to providing its associates with in-depth, state-of-the-art training to keep them abreast of the latest economic trends, important new legislation and innovative financial products.

"Of course, the single greatest ingredients in the client's successful relationship with a financial adviser are mutual confidence and trust."

Mr. Hill holds the CLU and ChFC designations, and has been a financial consultant with Baystate Financial for 10 years. Prior to that, he was the national editor in economics with Addison-Wesley Publishing Company.

He is a Phi Beta Kappa graduate of the University of California, and lives with his wife, Janis, and their two children, Kaitlin and Matt.

plant applies 238 horsepower to the cause of accelerating the 560SEL Sedan and 560SEC Coupe to 60 mph in 7.4 and 7.1 seconds, respectively. Both Mecedes-Benz V-8 sedan engines are built on a cylinder block of lightweight silicon-impregnated aluminum alloy that functions without wear-prone, heavy steel cylinder liners. Both are of an overhead-cam design with high-efficiency wedge combustion chambers.

Some of the most prized Mercedes-Benz sedans of decades past were powered by in-line six-cylinder engines. In the 300SE and 30SEL sedans, this power plant configuration reaches its zenith.

Pouring out 177 liquid-smooth horsepower, this advanced-design engine makes the 300SE sedan capable of 0-60 mph in 9.3 seconds. The 300SEL can reach the same mark in 9.4 seconds.

The six-cylinder power plant's seven main-bearing crankshaft is of spin-forged steel. Spin-forging positions the grain of the steel parallel to the lines of force, increasing overall strength.

The valve train is of a single overhead camshaft design, thus the number of moving parts is minimized. Reliability and high-speed operation are optimized.

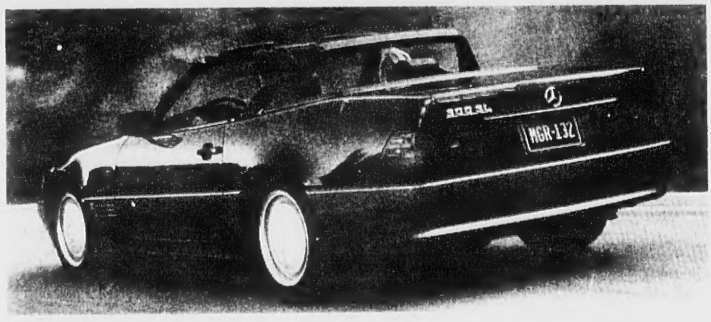

Generously sized valves and cross-flow porting enhance cylinder filling. Combustion-chamber squish areas promote turbulence, which makes the engine resistant to spark knock while enhancing ignition of even very lean air/fuel mixtures.

Powering the Mercedes-Benz 350SD and 350SDL turbo sedans is an engine that can be described as probably the finest passenger car diesel ever built.

Incorporating a revolutionary new combustion technology, this turbocharged diesel power plant is as energetic and responsive as it is easy to start, clean-burning and quiet.

The high-technology key to this brilliant new diesel is an advanced prechamber and angular fuel injector that radically improves air/fuel efficiency. A unique new glow-plug system improves combustion in the critical moments after initial start-up.

While this new diesel exceeds all other passenger car diesels in performance and comfort, it may well exceed them in endurance as well. At its heart is an immensely sturdy spin-forged crankshaft. On each of its radiuses and heat-treated rod journals, a forged-steel connecting rod mounts an oil-cooled alloy piston.

The substantial torque of every S-Class sedan and a coupe power plant is funneled through a four-speed automatic transmission. The deeply notched shift gate of the transmission selector lever allows confident manual upshifts and downshifts.

Every 1992 Mercedes-Benz S-Class automatic gasoline-engine automobile can be fitted with ASR, automatic slip control.

Optionally available at extra cost, ASR is an electronic traction-control system that automatically helps prevent excessive wheelslip during acceleration, especially on slippery surfaces. ASR measures variations in rotational speed between the driven wheels and non-driven wheels.

When a loss of traction is noted, ASR applies brake pressure to the slipping wheel or wheels. If brake application doesn't restore traction within a specified time, engine power is reduced by means of electronic control.

ASD, an automatic-locking differential that prevents excessive loss of rear-wheel traction up to 19 mph, is available at extra cost on both diesel sedans and the 300 SL manual transmission.

Premium sedan decathlon: Audi 100 outpoints rivals

Against fierce competition from Japan and Europe, Audi's new 100 sedan outpoints formidable rivals, revealing itself as an automotive champion in wet conditions and dry.

The field

For the IMSA showdown, seven competitive makes were represented: Audi, Mercedes-Benz, BMW, Volvo, Acura, Lexus, and Mazda.

All were new 1992 four-door sedans equipped with six-cylinder engines, four-speed automatic transmissions, four-wheel disc brakes and anti-lock braking. And all weighed within 150 pounds of 3500 pounds.

From Germany, the all new Audi 100 V-6, the BMW 525i and the Mercedes-Benz 300E 2.6 were selected. All three of these cars are excellent examples of six-cylinder touring sedans with autobahn-bred road manners.

But while the BMW and Benz are both rear-driven, the Audi breaks German luxury-car tradition by employing front-wheel drive.

The contender from Sweden was an intriguing new model: the rear-drive Volvo 960, powered by a brand new aluminum-alloy 2.9-liter, 24-valve six cylinder power plant.

Representing Japan were the Acura Legend, the Lexus ES 300 and the Mazda 929, all thoroughly revised versions of earlier models and all powered by recently upgraded V-6 power plants.

The popular Legend is often referred to as the benchmark in this field, while the ES 300 is the newest iteration of Lexus' entry-line luxury car – replacing the ES250.

Like its predecessor, the Lexus shares much of its technology with the Toyota Camry V-6, also refined for 1992. The interestingly-styled Mazda is the only Japanese sedan in the group powered by the rear wheels.

The final lineup: a foursome of worthy opponents from Europe plus an equally deserving trio from Japan.

Final results

When the final numbers were computed, it was clear that – to the surprise of those who may have favored the Lexus or the Acura – the Audi 100 had established a solid victory, echoing its earlier successes in European testing and in the comparison staged by Road & Track.

Its average performance in the first IMSA events certainly gave no reason to predict such an outcome.

And although it didn't outperform in all events, it was first in five of them – more than any other car.

The Audi scored the best overall performance of the group with a point total 27 percent better than the nearest runner up, the Lexus ES 300 and almost 74 percent better than the last place finishers: the Acura Legend and the Volvo 960.

Audi's engineering efforts have yielded a multi-talented performer in the new 100 V-6, and as these tests show, one with obvious expertise in handling severe emergency maneuvers like panic braking and accident avoidance.

The final result of this "automotive track-and-field meet" was the crowning of an unexpected new champion in the premium sedan class.

With poise and balance in wet and dry conditions, the Audi showed strengths in virtually all ten events, particularly in the areas of predictable handling and control.

The Audi's broadly-based performance reveals it to be an important new force in the continuing power struggle for luxury-car supremacy.

Its overall excellence is also likely to give this automobile even more presence on car buyers' shopping lists.
